EXTRACT FROM PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION.

IN Dr. Bühler's well-known Kashmir Report of 1877, we read the following:—"A curious and very useful though modern treatise is the Laukikanyâyasangraha of Raghunâth, a Rajput. This worthy has collected the nyâyas or 'inferences from familiar instances,' which occur in the S'âstras, especially those from the Vedântas'âstra e. g. Daṇḍâpûpikânyâya, Dehalî-dîpanyâya &c. The collection is not complete, but contains a good deal more than that Professor Bâlas'âstrî has given in his article in the Pandit.* P. Vâmanâchârya Jhalkikar is at present engaged on a still more extensive work on this subject, which will comprise about 900 such nyâyas." Page 76.

The information given in the concluding sentence raised our hopes to a high pitch, for the need of such a work was great, and Bâlas'âstrî had explained only nine of those nyâyas. But alas! 'there's many a slip between the cup and lip,' and though we have waited for this "more extensive work" for 22 long years, there are still no signs of its appearing.

I have therefore determined to lay before the public the 'handful' of popular maxims which I have collected during many years of reading, in the hope that they may become the nucleus of a very much larger collection. In Târâvâth Tarkavâchaspati's Vâcaspatyam we have a list of 151 nyâyas, popular and technical; but references to works where they are to be found are few and far between, and this considerably lessens their value. Thirty of these were reproduced in V. S. Âpte's dictionary, in 1890, but with the same defect. Again, in 1875, Pandit Satyavrata Sâmas'rami published a small pamphlet of 36 popular maxims together with a larger number of purely technical ones, and professed to give a reference for each of them. But a man who refers you to the "Bhâgavata Purâṇa," to "A commentary on the Vedântabhâshya," or to "A commentary on the Kâvya- prakâs'a," and vouchsafes no further information whatever, is a worthless guide; and such mere semblance of guidance deserves nothing but reprobation. One can tolerate ambiguity of this kind in the ancient writings; but in modern times, when printed books of reference abound, such vagueness is inexcusable.

*October and December 1867.

My list comprises only 'popular' maxims, and therefore such purely technical ones as Adhyâropanyâya, kaîmutikunyanâya, gunopasamhâranyanâya, and others of a similar nature, which abound in the philosophical and grammatical works, will not be found here. Moreover, I have rigorously excluded even popular maxims which I have been unable to find in actual use in the literature, deeming an unverified maxim with a mere dictionary-existence as of very little value.

* * * * *

I may add that about 22 illustrative sayings, which are practically nyâyas, might be gathered from the fourth Book of the Sâmkhyasûtras; such as, for example, the well-known "अहिनिर्वयनीवत्" and others more or less useful. Some of them were published in the Pandit for December 1876, under the title of "Stories illustrative of the Sâmkhya doctrine;" but the whole will be found translated in the volume of "Sâmkhya Aphorisms" published in Trübner's Oriental Series.

* * * * *

In concluding this preface I must apologize to the reader for not giving him a bigger 'handful' of maxims, and one of better quality. But what there is has been put together in defiance of the warnings of the skilful oculist in whose hands I have been for the last five years, and therefore at some risk to failing sight. May some younger scholar be provoked to the good work of giving us something fuller and better.

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION.

Seven years have elapsed since the publication of this booklet, and, as my researches have been continued during the whole of the interval, I have naturally collected much additional material. Part of this was published as a "Second Handful" in 1902, and that was succeeded by a "Third" in 1904. During my reading I frequently came upon older references to many of the nyâyas first published, and these have now been utilized; whilst other changes, some of them of a radical nature, have been made, and a few new nyâyas added. The discovery of MSS. of Raghunâthavarman's works, as recorded in the preface to the "Second Handful", was of the utmost importance to me; but the student will find in my three small volumes some nyâyas which even he did not explain,—amongst which are the कृत्वाचिन्तान्याय and मणिमन्त्रन्याय here incorporated for the first time. I make no distinction now between what may be really called a 'popular' maxim, and one of a technical nature. Both need to be explained and illustrated, so both are freely admitted. I have thoroughly revised, and considerably enlarged, the "Second Handful" also, and hope soon to see it reprinted. It will contain, amongst much new matter, the story connected with the वधूमापमापनन्याय which so long eluded me, and for which, as well as for several other valuable items of information, I am indebted to Mr. Govind Dâs, an Honorary magistrate of Benares. Another lover of Sanskrit has come to my help in the person of Mr. M. R. Telang, Head Shirastedar of the Bombay High Court, who has kindly supplied what was to me, at any rate, a novel interpretation of the लोष्टप्रस्तारन्याय. I am anxious to revise as soon as possible the whole of the nyâyas which I have endeavoured to elucidate, before increasing infirmities compel the abandonment of the studies which have been my delight for forty-six years.

I wish I could impart to some of my fellow countrymen resident in India, something of the enthusiasm which its grand literature awakened within me in the early part of my career, and which has never waned during this long intervening period. Such a hobby not only provides delightful mental exercise, but, better still, it draws one into sympathetic touch with the people amongst whom one's lot is cast.

List of Works quoted in the following pages.

- Advaitabrahmasiddhi*, of Sadānanda Yati; Bib. Ind., 1890.
- Alankārasarvasva* of Rājānaka Ruyyaka; Nirṇaya-sāgar Press, Bombay, 1893.
- Āpastamba-Gṛihyasūtra*, with the Com. of Sudars'anārya; edited by Dr. Winternitz, Vienna, 1887.
- Ātmātattvaviveka* of Udayana, edited by Pandit Jivānanda Vidyāsāgara; Calcutta, 1873.
- Bhāmatī* of Vācaspatimis'ra; Bib. Ind., 1880.
- Bhartrihari's S'atakatraya, with Com.; Nirṇaya-sāgar Press, Bombay, S'aka 1813.
- Bhāshāpariccheda*, with Com.; edited by L. N. Vasāka, Calcutta, 1871.
- Bhedadhikkāra* of Nṛsiṃhās'rama Muni; Benares Sanskrit Series, 1904.
- Brahmasūtrabhāṣya* of S'ankarācārya, with Ānandagiri's Com.; Ānandās'rama Press, 2 vols, 1890-1. Translation by Dr. G. Thibaut in Sacred Books of East Series; 2 vols, 1890-6. A fine edition of the Bhāṣya, with the Bhāmatī, and two other Commentaries, was issued from the Nirṇaya-sāgar Press, in one volume, in 1904.
- Brahmasūtratātparyavivaraṇa*, published in The Paṇḍit for 1882.
- Bṛihadāraṇyakopaniṣadbhāṣyavārtika* of Sures'varācārya, with Ānandagiri's ṭikā, and full Index to verses; Ānandās'rama Press, 2 vols, 1892-4. This is sometimes quoted as the large Vārtika.
- Citsukhī* of Citsukhamuni, with his own vṛitti; published in the Paṇḍit for 1882-3.
- Dhvanyāloka* of Ānandavardhana, with Abhinavagupta's ṭikā; Nirṇaya-sāgar Press, 1891.

Gaṇaratnamahodadhi of Vardhamāna; edited by Prof. Egge-ling, 1879-81. Index much needed.

Haṭhayogapradīpikā of Svātmārām, with Brahmānanda's ṭīkā; Nirṇaya-sāgar Press, S'aka 1811.

History of Indian Literature, by Prof. Dr. Weber; Trübner's
Oriental Series, 1878.

History of Sanskrit Literature, by Prof. A. A. Macdonell, London, 1900.

Jaimini's Mīmāṃsāsūtra, with S'abara's Bhāṣya; 2 vols. Bib.
Ind., 1873-89.

Jīvanmuktivivēka of Vidyāraṇya; Ānandās'rama Series, S'aka 1811.

Kāmasūtra of Vātsyāyana; Nirṇaya-sāgar Press, 1891.

Kathāsaritsāgara of Somadevabhaṭṭa; Nirṇaya-sāgar Press,
1887. Translation by Prof. C. H. Tawney, 2 vols., Bib. Ind., 1880-4.

Kāryādalars'a of Daṇḍin; Bib. Ind., 1863.

Kāvyaḷankāra of Rudraṭa, with Namisādhu's ṭīkā; Nirṇaya-sāgar Press, 1886.

Kāvyaṇadīpa of Govinda, with Vaidyanātha's ṭīkā; Nirṇaya-sāgar Press, 1891.

Kāvyaṇprakāśa of Mammata and Allata; edited by Mahes'acandra Nyāyaratna, Calcutta, 1866.

Khaṇḍanakhāṇḍakhāḍya of S'rihara, with S'ankaramis'ra's ṭīkā; Medical Hall Press, Benares, 1888. A new edition of this work, with the Com. entitled Vidyāsōgarī, is now appearing in the Chaukhambā Sanskrit Series, Benares, edited by Prof. Gangānātha Jhā who is also issuing a translation in the new Magazine Indian Thought.

Khaṇḍanoddhāra, a criticism of the above, by Vācaspati (not the celebrated philosopher, but a modern writer of about three centuries ago—so the learned Paṇḍit Govind Dās of Bena-res tells me); Medical Hall Press, Benares. Incomplete.

Kusumāñjali of Udayana, with his own commentary, 1st edition

2 vols, Bib. Ind., 1890-95. The kârikâs of the same, with Haridâsa's tîkâ, edited and translated by Prof. Cowell; Calcutta, 1864.

Kuralayâna of Appaidîkṣita, with Vaidyanâtha's tîkâ, edited by Paṇḍit J. Vidyâsâgara; Calcutta, S'aka 1796. A very faulty edition. But an excellent one of the same two works, was published at the Nirṇaya-sâgar Press, in 1903.

Laukikanyâyasangraha of Raghunâthavarman; India office MS. 700. An inaccurate edition was published at the Medical Hall Press, Benares, in 1902.

Mâgha's S'is'upâlaradha with Mallinâtha's comment, edited by Târânâth Tarkavâcaspati; Calcutta, S'aka 1769.

Mahâbhârata, 4 vols, Calcutta 1834-39. Also an oblong edition with Nîlkanṭha Govind's tîkâ; Gaṇpat Kṛishnâjî's Press, Bombay, S'aka 1799.

Mahâbhâṣya of Patanjali, edited by Dr. Kielhorn; 3 vols, Bombay Sanskrit Series, 1880-85. A new edition is now in course of publication; and let us hope that the learned editor will add a complete index.

Manusmṛiti with 7 Commentaries; edited by Râo Sâhib V. N. Maṇḍlik, Bombay, 1886.

Manual of Hindu Pantheism, by Colonel Jacob; Trübner's Oriental Series, 3rd edition, 1891. This edition was reprinted by the publishers, about two years ago, without the author's knowledge, and therefore without the revision necessary to bring it up to date.

Molesworth's Marâṭhi-English Dictionary; 2nd. edition, Bombay, 1857.

Mṛicchakaṭikandâṭaka, edited by N. B. Godbole; Bombay, 1896. Translation by Dr. Ryder; Harvard Oriental Series, 1905.

Mudrârâkṣasanâṭaka with Dhundhirâja's tîkâ, edited by K. T. Telang; Bombay Sanskrit Series, 1884.

Naishkarmyasiddhi of Sures'vara, with the comment of Jnânôtama; edited by Colonel Jacob, 2nd. edition, Bombay, 1906.

Nītisāra of Kāmandaki, with ṭikā; Bib. Ind., 1884.

Nyāyabinduṭīkā of Dharmottara, edited by Prof. P. Peterson; Bib. Ind., 1889.

Nyāyakandalī of S'ridhara, with the text of Pras'astapāda's Vaiśeṣikabhāṣya; Vizianagram Sanskrit Series, 1895. It is a lamentable thing that this fine series has come to a premature end. A translation of both works is now appearing in the Paṇḍit.

Nyāyakanikā, a Commentary by Vācaspatimis'ra on Maṇḍanamis'ra's Vidhiviveka, with which it is now being published in the Paṇḍit.

Nyāyamakaranda of Ānandabodha, with comment by Cit-sukha Muni; Chaukhambā Sanskrit Series, Benares. Incomplete.

Nyāyamanjarī of Jayanta Bhaṭṭa; Vizianagram Sanskrit Series, 1895.

Nyāyasiddhāntadīpa of S'eṣadharācārya, with comment of S'eṣānanta; in course of publication in Paṇḍit.

Nyāyavārtika of Uddyotakara; Bib. Ind., 1907. The first fasciculus was issued in 1887; the title page, this year!

Nyāyavārtikatātparyāṭīkā of Vācaspatimis'ra; Vizianagram Sanskrit Series, 1895. Often quoted as Tātparyāṭīkā. When are we going to have an edition of Udayana's Paris'uddhi?

Padamanjarī, a Commentary on Kāśīkāvṛtti; published in the Paṇḍit, 2 vols.

Pancadas'ī of Vidyāranya, with Rāmkrishṇa's comment; edited by Paṇḍit J. Vidyāsāgara, Calcutta, 1882.

Pancapādikā of Padmapāda; Vizianagram Sanskrit Series, 1891. Said to be the oldest comment on S'ankara's bhāṣya (sūtras 1-4 only).

A translation of the first 14 pages of this work, by Mr. Arthur Venis, was published in the Paṇḍit, but then, alas! it ceased!

- Pancatantra*, edited by Professors Bühler and Kielhorn; Bombay Sanskrit Series, 1885.
- Paris'istaparvan* of Hemacandra, edited by Prof. H. Jacobi; Bib. Ind., 1891.
- Practical Sanskrit Dictionary* by V. S. Âpte; Poona, 1890.
- Prasannarâghava Nâṭaka* of Jayadeva; Nirṇaya-sâgar Press, 1893.
- Râjataranginî* of Kalhana, edited by Paṇḍit Durgâprasâd; Bombay Sanskrit Series, 1892-96.
- Râmâyana* of Vâlmiki; Nirṇaya-sâgar Press, 2 vols, 1888.
- Rasagangâdhara* of Jagannâth Paṇḍit, with Nâges'a Bhaṭṭa's ṭikâ; Nirṇaya-sâgar Press, 1888.
- Rational Refutation of Hindu Philosophical Systems*, by N. S'âstrî Goreh, translated from the Hindi by Dr. Fitzedward Hall; Calcutta, 1862.
- Ṣaḍḍars'anacintanikâ* of Mahâdeo Moreshwar Kunte, in Sanskrit, Marâṭhi and English; Poona, 1877-82. Incomplete.
- Ṣaḍḍars'anasamuccaya* of Haribhadrasûri, with the comment of Maṇibhadra; Chaukhambâ Sanskrit Series, Benares, 1905. About half of the chapter on Jainism is found, word for word, in the Syâdvâdamanjarî! Which was the plagiarist, this man or Malliṣeṇa?
- S'ankaravijaya* of Ânandagiri; Bib. Ind., 1868.
- Sânkhyasûtravṛtti* of Aniruddha, with Extracts from Vedantin Mahâdeva's Commentary, edited and translated by Dr. R. Garbe; Bib. Ind., 1888 and 1892.
- Sânkhyatattvakaumudî* of Vâcaspatimis'ra, edited by Paṇḍit Târânâth Tarkavâcaspati; Calcutta, 1871.
- Sankṣhepas'arîrakâ* of Sarvajnâtma Muni; The Paṇḍit, vols., IV-X. New Series.
- Saptapadârthî* of S'ivâditya, with comment by Mâdhava Sarasvati; Vizianagram Sanskrit Series, 1893.

Sarvadaśāsanāngraḥa of Mādhava; Bib. Ind., 1858. An edition by Jivānanda Vidyāśāgara, Calcutta, 1871. Translation by Professors Cowell and Gough, in Trübner's Oriental Series, 1882. This, too, was reprinted by the publishers, without the much-needed revision. An edition of the Text, with an additional chapter on S'ankara's system, and the text of Madhusūdana Sarasvatī's Prasthānabheda, was published at the Ānandāśrama Press in 1906.

Sāstradīpikā of Pārthasārathi Miśra; Medical Hall Press, Benares, 1891.

Satyavrata Sāmas'ramī's Nyāyāvali; Calcutta, 1875.

Siddhāntaleśa of Appaidikṣita; Vizianagram Sanskrit Series, 1890. A translation by Mr. Arthur Venis is being published in the Pandit. So far, it extends to page 47 only of the text. I hope my learned friend will carry this on to completion; for his renderings and critical notes are always of the highest value.

Syādvādamanjarī, a Commentary by Malliṣeṇa on Hemacandra's verses entitled Vītarāgastuti; Chaukhambā Sanskrit Series, Benares, 1900. This work is wrongly described by Rājendralāl Mitra, in his Notices of Sanskrit Mss. vol. iv, page 87, as "A Commentary in verse," and ascribed to Gaganadīnamanī. See the remarks, above, on Sarvadaśāsanāsamuccaya.

Taittirīyopaniṣadbhāṣyavārtika of Sures'varācārya, with Ānandajñāna's ṭikā; Ānandāśrama Press, Śāka 1811.

Tantravārtika of Kumārila; Benares Sanskrit Series, 1903. Prof. Gangānātha Jhā is bringing out a translation of this important work in the Bibliotheca Indica Series. He has already, through the same channel, published a complete translation of the first volume of Kumārila's work, the S'lokavārtika.

Tūrkikarakṣā of Varadarāja, with the Commentary (in part) of Mallinātha; Medical Hall Press, Benares, 1903.

- Tattvamuktākalāpa* of Venkaṭnātha, with his own comment; Medical Hall Press, Benares, 1900. In the Sarvadarsāna-sangraha it is quoted as Tattvamuktāvali.
- Udānam*, a Buddhist work, published by Pāli Text Society, 1885.
- Upamitibhava-prapañcā Kathā* of Siddhārṣi, edited by Professors Peterson and Jacobi; Bib. Ind., 1899-1907. Incomplete.
- Upadeśasāhasrī* of Śaṅkarācārya, with Rāmatīrtha's ṭikā; edited by Kṛṣṇa Śāstri Navare, Bombay, 1886.
- Vācaspatyam*, a Sanskrit Lexicon, of 5442 pages, by Paṇḍit Tārānātha Tarkavācaspati, Calcutta. It is very full up to the end of ṛ (page 4550), whilst the rest of the alphabet is squeezed into 900 pages! It is said that the Bengal Govt., which largely subsidized the undertaking, ordered it to be curtailed. If that is so, it did a very unwise thing! We ought to store up the knowledge of these old Pandits who are fast dying out!
- Vedāntakalpataru* of Amalānanda, a commentary on the Bhāmātī; Vizianagram Sanskrit Series, 1895-7.
- Vedāntakalpataruparimala* of Appaidīksita; Vizianagram Sanskrit Series, 1895-8. Sometimes quoted as Parimala.
- Vedāntasāra* of Sadānanda, with the commentaries of Nṛsiṃha-sarasvatī and Rāmatīrtha; edited by Colonel Jacob, and published at Nirṇaya-sāgar Press, 1894. For the translation of the same, see Manual of Hindu Pantheism.
- Vedāntasiddhāntamuktāvali* of Prakāśānanda, edited and translated by Prof. Arthur Venis; Benares, 1890.
- Vidvanmandana* of Viṭṭhala Upādhyāya, edited by Ratnagopāla; Victoria Press, Benares, 1904. In Hall's Index this is described as "Strictures on the expositions of several expositors of the Vedānta doctrine." It ascribes to the same author a work entitled Bhakti-hetunirṇaya.
- Vivaraṇa-prameyasangraha* of Vidyāranya; Vizianagram Sanskrit Series, 1893. A translation by Dr. Thibaut is now appearing in the new Review, Indian Thought.

Yas'astilaka of Somadeva, with S'ris'rutasâgara's ṭikâ; Nir-ṇaya-sâgar Press, 2 vols. 1901-3.

Yogasûtra with Vyâsa's bhâṣhya and Vâcaspatimis'ra's ṭikâ, edited by Rājārām Sâstri Boḍas; Bombay Sanskrit Series, 1892.

Yogavârtika of Vijnâna Bhikṣu; Medical Hall Press, Benares, 1884.

Yogavâsisṭha with the Commentary of Ânandabodhendia Saraswati; Ganpat Kṛishnâji's Press, Bombay. This ought to be printed in modern style. The huge oblong tomes are most difficult to handle.

A HANDFUL OF POPULAR MAXIMS.

अजाकृपाणीयन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the she-goat and the sword. It is founded on some story of a goat's being suddenly killed by accidental contact with a sword, and is used to illustrate any surprising event happening altogether by chance. It therefore belongs to the same class as काकतालीय, खल्वाटविल्वीय and others of a similar kind. An excellent illustration of its use is found on page 229 of S'riharsha's Khaṇḍanakhāṇḍakhādyā:—"पाणौ पञ्च वराटकान्पिधाय कश्चित्पृच्छति कति वराटका इति । पृष्टश्चाजाकृपाणीयन्यायेन ब्रवीति पञ्चेति" ॥ In a footnote the maxim is thus explained:—"कण्डूयनार्थं स्तंभादौ शिथिलबन्धखङ्गे छागी ग्रीवां प्रसारयति यदृच्छया च ग्रीवा छिद्यते तथाभूतोऽजाकृपाणीयन्यायः काकतालीयन्यायसमः" ॥ Vardhamāna puts it differently in his comment on Gaṇaratnamahodadhī iii. 196:—"यथाजया भूमिं खनन्त्यात्मवधाय कृपाणो दर्शितस्तत्तुल्यं वृत्तं केनचिदात्मविनाशाय कृतमजाकृपाणीयम्" ॥ For another variety, see Padamañjarī on Kāśīkā 5. 3. 106.

The nyāya, with the same illustration, is found also in the Khaṇḍanoddhāra, page 52; and the illustration, without the nyāya, in Siddhāntaleś'a, page 95. Then on page 96, it is again referred to in the expression "काकतालीयसंवादिवराटकसंख्याविशेषाहार्यज्ञानवत्."

It is interesting to note that the Marāṭhī-speaking folk of Western India have adopted the maxim, but with a changed meaning. Molesworth defines it as "The maxim of the sword upon the neck of the goat. Expressive of meekness and absolute helplessness."

अन्तर्दीपिकान्यायः ॥

The maxim of a lamp in a central position. Applied to something which fulfils a double purpose. It occurs in S'ankara's bhâshya on the Muṇḍaka Upanishad 3. 1. 5. ("सत्येन लभ्यस्तपसा ह्येव आत्मा सम्यग्ज्ञानेन ब्रह्मचर्येण नित्यम्" ।) on which he says:—"नित्यं सर्वदा । नित्यं सत्येन नित्यं तपसा नित्यं सम्यग्ज्ञानेनेति सर्वत्र नित्यशब्दोऽन्तर्दीपिकान्यायेनानुपक्तव्यः" ॥ It is akin to देहलीदीपन्याय and मध्यदीपन्याय. Jivânanda's edition of the Muṇḍakabhâshya reads अन्त्यदीपकन्यायेन. The reading given above is from the Ânandâs'rama edition.

अन्धकवर्तकीयन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the blind man and the quail. Like अजाकृपाणीय and many others, it is used to express a wholly fortuitous occurrence. Vardhamâna, on Gaṇaratnamahodadhî iii. 195, explains it thus:—"अन्धकश्च वर्तका च अन्धकवर्तकम् । अन्धकस्य वर्तकाया उपर्यतर्कितः पादन्यास उच्यते । तत्तुल्यमन्धकवर्तकीयम्" ॥ This authority brings the quail under the blind man's foot; but the commentator S'ris'rutasâgara, who expounded the work Yas'astilaka,* and who in the colophon is described as "तर्कव्याकरण-छन्दोलंकारसिद्धान्तसाहित्यादिशास्त्रनिपुणमतिः प्राकृतव्याकरणाद्यनेकशास्त्ररचनाचुञ्चुः," brings the bird into the man's hands. And, surely, such a prodigy of learning must be right! The verse in which the expression अन्धकवर्तकीय occurs is Yas'astilaka ii. 153. "संसारसागरमिमं भ्रमता नितान्तं जीवेन मानवभवः समवापि दैवात् । तत्रापि यद्भुवनमान्यकुले प्रसूतिः सत्सङ्गतिश्च तदिहान्धकवर्तकीयम्" ॥ "It is altogether by chance that a soul wandering about in this ocean of repeated births is born as a man; and that he should be born into a family of repute in the world, and enjoy the society of the good, is likewise as accidental as in the case of the blind man and the

* This important work, described by Dr. Peterson at considerable length in his Second Report, was published in the Kâryamâlâ, a valuable periodical issued by the Proprietor of the Nirṇayasâgar Press.

quail." S'ris'rutasâgara's explanation of the last term is as follows:—"अन्धकवर्तकीयो दृष्टान्तः । यथा कश्चिदन्धकः पुमान् करतलेन करं ताडयन्वर्तते तस्य करद्वयमध्ये वर्तकः पक्षिविशेषः समायाति स तु दुर्लभस्तथा मानवभवे सत्सङ्गतिर्दुर्लभा वर्तते" ॥

अन्धगजन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the blind men and the elephant. A number of blind men desired to form an idea of the shape of an elephant. One touched his trunk and thought he must be like a snake; another took hold of a leg and supposed that he was like a post, and so on. Târânâtha tells us that it is used to illustrate the divergence of views held by the ignorant in regard to Îs'vara.

The story is found in the Buddhist work Udânam (vi. 4, pages 66-69) published by the Pâli Text Society in 1885.

It is referred to in Sures'vara's large Vârtika 4. 4. 566 (page 1813) as follows:—"एकमेवैकरूपं सदस्त्वज्ञातं निरञ्जनम् । जात्यन्धगजदृष्टेव कोटिशः कल्प्यते मृषा" ॥ Also in his Naïṣkarmyasiddhi ii. 93:—"तदेतद्वयं ब्रह्म निर्विकारं कुबुद्धिभिः । जात्यन्धगजदृष्टेव कोटिशः परिकल्प्यते" ॥ I have met with the nyâya again on pages 107 and 160 of Syâdvâdamanjarî. It occurs also in the Jainadarśana of Saḍḍars'anasamuccaya (page 46); but the passage in which it is found was taken verbatim from Mallisena's work, without any acknowledgment.

अन्धगोलाङ्गूलन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the blind man and the cow's tail. The story is that an evil-disposed fellow found a blind man who, having lost his way, was wandering about helplessly. Expressing great sympathy for him, and promising to help him, the man led him to a young and frisky cow, and putting her tail into his hand told him to hold on, and that she would certainly lead him to the village to which he wished to go. The result was, of course, most disastrous.

S'ankara, in his bhâshya on Vedântasûtra 1. 1. 7, applies the maxim to the case of a teacher who wrongly instructs his pupil in regard to emancipation and so leads him to destruction! These are his words:— “यदि चाज्ञस्य सतो मुमुक्षोरचेतनमात्मानमात्मेत्युपदिशेत्प्रमाणभूतं शास्त्रं स श्रद्धान्तयान्धगोलाङ्गलन्यायेन तदात्मदृष्टिं न परित्यजेत्तद्व्यतिरिक्तं चात्मानं न प्रतिपद्येत तथा सति पुरुषार्थाद्विह्नयेतानर्थं च ऋच्छेत्” ॥ The nyâya is found, too, in Pançapâdikâvivaraṇa, page 170.

✓ अन्धपरम्परान्यायः ॥

The maxim of a continuous series of blind men. It would seem to be in this sense that S'ankarâchârya uses it in his Brahmasûtrabhâshya 2. 2. 30, 37. The passages stand thus:— “अनादिस्त्वेऽप्यन्धपरम्परान्यायेनाप्रतिष्ठैवानवस्था व्यवहारलोपिनी स्यान्नाभिप्रायसिद्धिः” । “वर्तमानकालवदतीतेष्वपि कालेष्वितरेतराश्रयदोषाविशेषादन्धपरम्परान्यायापत्तेः” ॥ In his rendering of the former passage, Dr. Thibaut has overlooked the maxim, but the latter he translates as follows:—“For in past time as well as in the present, mutual interdependence of the two took place, so that the beginningless series is like an endless chain of blind men leading other blind men.” I should add that, in the former case, S'ankara is arguing against the Buddhist theory of a beginningless series of mental impressions, and, in the latter, against the Sâṅkhya notion of a similar chain of human actions and divine interpositions. Dr. Thibaut's explanation of the maxim is quite in accord with that of Dr. Garbe in his rendering of the Sâṅkhya-sûtra iii. 81 “इतरयान्धपरम्परा” “Else there would be a tradition [comparable to a row] of blind men [leading each other].”

A very apt quotation from one of Coleridge's Lay Sermons is given in that useful work A Rational Refutation of Hindu Philosophical Systems (now quite out of print), from which I extract the following:—"The old man talked much and vehemently concerning an infinite series of causes and effects, which he explained to be a string of blind men, the last of whom caught hold of the skirt of the one before him, he of the next, and so on till they were all out of sight; and that they all walked infallibly straight, without making one false step, though all were alike blind. Methought I borrowed courage from surprise, and asked him, 'Who, then, is at the head to guide them?' He looked at me with ineffable contempt, not unmixed with an angry suspicion and then replied, "No one; the string of blind men goes on for ever without any beginning, for although one blind man cannot move without stumbling, yet infinite blindness supplies the want of sight."

In the opening part of the Padamanjari (Pandit x. 248) we find the expression अन्धपरम्पराग्रसङ्ग used with reference to testimony received through a series of blind men, and therefore of doubtful value. It is part of an interesting discussion regarding different forms of a word, why some are considered correct and others not. "तत्र ये साधवस्ते शास्त्रेणानुशिष्यन्तेऽसाधुभ्यो विविक्ताः प्रकृतिप्रत्ययविभागेन ज्ञाप्यन्त इमे साधव इति । कथं पुनरिदमाचार्येण पाणिनिनावगतमेते साधव इति । आपिशलेन पूर्वव्याकरणेन । आपिशलिना तर्हि केनावगतम् । ततः पूर्वेण व्याकरणेन । यद्येवमन्धपरम्पराग्रसङ्गः । तद्यथा शुक्लं क्षीरमित्यन्धेनोक्ते केनेदमवगतमिति पृष्टो यदान्धान्तरं मूलं निर्दिशति सोऽप्यन्धान्तरं तदा नैतद्वचः शौक्ल्ये प्रमाणं भवति तादृगेतत्" ॥

That the nyâya is in very general use will be apparent from the following additional references. Tantravârtika, pages 11, 72, 75, 232, 799, 877. Pancapâdikâ, page 98. Bhâmatî, pages 254, 464. Nyâyamanjari pages 234, 249, 251, 425, 492.

अरुन्धतीप्रदर्शनन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the pointing out of the star Arundhati. The idea here is that of gradual instruction, on the principle of the अध्यारोपापदान्याय for which see the Second Handful. Its usage is explained by S'ankara in Brahmasûtrabhâshya 1. 1. 8, as follows:—"यथारुन्धतीं दिदर्शयिषुस्तत्समीपस्थां स्थूलां ताराममुख्यां प्रथममरुन्धतीति ग्राहयित्वा तां प्रत्याख्याय पश्चादरुन्धतीमेव ग्राहयति तद्वन्नायमात्मेति ब्रूयात्" ॥ Similarly, too, in 1. 1. 12, we read:—"यथारुन्धतीनिदर्शने बह्वीष्वपि तारास्वमुख्यास्वरुन्धतीषु दर्शितासु यान्त्या प्रदर्श्यते सा मुख्यैवारुन्धती भवत्येवमिहाप्यानन्दमयस्य सर्वान्तरत्वान्मुख्यमात्मत्वम्" ॥ The maxim is sometimes styled स्थूलारुन्धतीन्याय, and it appears under this name in Nṛsiṃhasarasvatī's commentary on section 20 of the Vedāntasāra—that section which gives the views of Chârvâka and others as to the âtman.

✓ अर्के चेन्मधु विन्देत किमर्थं पर्वतं व्रजेत् ॥

If one can find honey on the Ark-tree [close at hand] then why go to the mountain for it ? That is, if an object can be accomplished by simple means, don't adopt a more complicated method. This is well illustrated by S'ankara in his Vedānta-sûtrabhâshya 3. 4. 3, as follows:—"केवलाच्चेज्ज्ञानात्पुरुषार्थसिद्धिः स्यात्किमर्थमनेकायाससमन्वितानि कर्माणि ते कुर्युः । अर्के चेन्मधु विन्देत किमर्थं पर्वतं व्रजेदिति न्यायात्" ॥

Its source, however, is S'abara on Jaimini 1. 2. 4. Here, the pūrvapakshin, after taking exception to certain Vedic injunctions as useless says:—"तद्यथा पथि जातेऽर्के मधूत्सृज्य तेनैव पथा मध्वर्थिनः पर्वतं न गच्छेयुस्तादृशं हि तत् । अपि चाहुः । अर्के चेन्मधु विन्देत किमर्थं पर्वतं व्रजेत् । इष्टस्यार्थस्य संसिद्धौ को विद्वान्यत्नमाचरेत्" ॥ The same couplet is quoted by Aniruddha in his comment on Sāṅkhyasûtra i. 1; also by Vâchaspati Miśra in his Sāṅkhyatattvakaumudī 1., and again in his Nyāyavârtikatâtparyāṭikā, page 220. Instead of अर्के, however, we have in the former instance अक्के and in the latter अक्के. Raghunâth reads अक्के and explains it by गृहकोणे. One more example of the application of this nyāya may be found in Kumārila's Tantravârtikā 1.2.17:—

“यद्यल्पान्महतश्च कर्मणः समं फलं जायेत ततोऽके चेन्मधु विन्देतेत्यनेनैव न्यायेनाल्पेन सिद्धे महति न कश्चित्प्रवर्तेत” ॥

अर्धजरतीयन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the semi-senile woman. It is very difficult to fix on the exact force of this saying. Authorities differ so much as to make it almost an instance of quot homines tot sententiae. As expounded by Vardhamāna (iii. 195) it seems to imply indefiniteness, half-and-half-ness, the being neither one thing nor the other. He says:—“यथा स्त्री न तरुणी श्रुत्यस्तनत्वात् कृष्णकेशत्वान्न जरती वक्तुं शक्यते तद्वत्सिद्धासिद्धं प्रयोजनम्” ॥ This seems to accord with the meaning assigned to it by Marāṭhas, as shown by Molesworth in his Marāṭhi dictionary where he defines it as “Action of indeterminate character; speech vague and indefinite; a proceeding void of decided leaning or bearing.”

The maxim is cited by S'ankara in Brahmasūtrabhāṣya 1. 1. 19, and again in 1. 2. 8. In the former, after quoting Taittirīya-upanishad ii. 1-4 in regard to अन्नरसमय, प्राणमय &c. he says:—“इति विकारार्थे मयदप्रवाहे सत्यानन्दमय एवाकस्मादर्धजरतीयन्यायेन कथमिव मयटः प्राचुर्यार्थत्वं ब्रह्मविषयत्वं वाश्रीयत इति” ॥ The commentators Ānandagiri and Rāmānanda (erroneously styled Govindānanda*) ignore the maxim entirely, and so does Dr. Thibaut in his translation. In the second instance, S'ankara says:—“यथाशास्त्रं तर्हि शास्त्रीयोऽर्थः प्रतिपत्तव्यो न तत्रार्धजरतीयं लभ्यम्,” which is rendered by Dr. Thibaut, “Very well, then, it appears that the truth about scriptural matters is to be ascertained from scripture, and that scripture is not sometimes to be appealed to and on other occasions to be disregarded.” Ānandagiri's comment is:—“न हि कुकुटादेरेकदेशो भोगाय पच्यत एकदेशस्तु प्रसयाय कल्प्यते विरोधात्”, “You cannot take one part of a fowl for cooking and leave the other part to lay eggs,” that is, you must take a thing in its entirety, or else leave it altogether. Rāmānanda, on the other hand, says:—“अर्धं मुखमात्रं जरत्या वृद्धायाः कामयते नाङ्गानीति सोऽयमर्धजरतीयन्यायः स चात्र न युक्तः,” which seems to be based on Patanjali's words “न चेदानीमर्धजरतीयं लभ्यं... । तद्यथा । अर्धं जरत्याः कामयतेऽर्धं नेति”, as found in Mahābhāṣya 4. 1. 78.* Again we find the maxim in the Bauddha section of Sarva-dars'anasangraha (page 14 of Bib. Ind., and 17 of Jivānanda's edn.), which reads thus:—“न चार्धजरतीयमुचितम् । न हि कुक्कुट्या एको भागः पाकायापरो भागः प्रसवाय कल्प्यतामिति कल्प्यते”, and which is identical with Ānandagiri's exposition. Prof. Gough, who translated this chapter, rendered the maxim by “semi-effete”—“Nor is a semi-effete existence admissible.”

Another excellent illustration of the usage of this nyāya is given in the following passage of the Brahmasūtratātparjya-vivaraṇa 3. 4. 26. (The Paṇḍit vol. vi. page 220):—“ब्रह्मविद्या स्वफले कर्माणि नापेक्षते तथा स्वोत्पत्तावपि नापेक्षते । अन्यथा कचिदपेक्षा कचिन्नेत्यर्धजरतीयत्वापत्तिरिति प्राप्ते आह सर्वापेक्षेति । नार्धजरतीयन्यायो योग्यतावशादेवैकस्यैव कार्यविशेषेण्वपेक्षानपेक्षयोरुपपत्तेः । यथा लाङ्गलवहनेऽनपेक्षितोऽश्वो रथवहनेऽपेक्ष्यते तद्वत्स्वोत्पत्तौ तु विद्या कर्मापेक्षते” ॥

अशक्तोऽहं गृहारम्भे शक्तोऽहं गृहभञ्जने ॥

I am too weak to construct a house, but I am well able to destroy one. This is found in Dhundhirāja's commentary on Mudrārākṣha iii. 11. Chāṇakya says—“कथं स्पृष्टं ते मया सह दुरात्मा राक्षसः” । and then follows the verse “कृतागाः कौटिल्यो भुजग

* Vol. ii. page 231 of the edition by Dr. F. Kielhorn, who himself most kindly gave me the reference.

इव निर्याय नगरात् &c.," on which Dhundhirāja remarks:—"ममेव नास्य बुद्धिबलं परंतु मत्सरमात्रेण अशक्तोऽहं गृहारम्भे शक्तोऽहं गृहभजन इति न्यायेन मौर्यापकारमात्राय प्रयतमानः सन्केवलं पौरुषबलमवष्टभ्य मद्बुद्धेः प्रकर्ष-मतिशयितुं व्यवसित इत्यहो राक्षसस्य दुर्व्यवसितमिति" ॥ I am indebted for this passage to the late learned Librarian at the India Office, C. H. Tawney Esqr., who has also pointed out to me Pancatantra i. 363 as illustrating the nyāya.

The verse reads thus:—

“घातयितुमेव नीचः परकार्यं वेत्ति न प्रसाधयितुम् । पातयितुमेव शक्तिर्नाखोरुद्धर्तुमन्नपिडम् ” ॥

अशोकवनिकान्यायः ॥

The maxim of the grove of As'oka trees. Âpte says "Râvana kept Sitâ in the grove of As'oka trees, but it is not easy to account for his preference of that particular grove to any other one; so when a man finds several ways of doing a thing, any one of them may be considered as good as another, and the preference of any particular one cannot be accounted for." For the As'oka-grove see Râmâyana 1. 1. 73. The only example of this nyāya that I have met with is in S'esânanta's ṭikâ on S'as'adhara's Nyāyasiddhântadîpa, page 11. This work was commenced in the Paṇḍit for April 1903, but is still incomplete.

अश्मलोष्टन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the stone and clod of earth. Âpte, following the Vācaspatyam, explains it thus:—"A clod may be considered to be hard when compared with cotton, but is soft as compared with a stone. So a person may be considered to be very important as compared with his inferiors, but sinks into insignificance when compared with his betters." Târânâtha adds that when it is intended to indicate that there is very little difference between two things or persons compared, the kindred maxim पापणेष्टकान्याय is used. With these Âpte compares the Marâthi proverb “दगडापेक्षां चीट मऊ” “Brick is softer than stone.” The sense, however, is not quite the same; for, according to Molesworth, the Marâthi saying is used “in ironical softening of a difficulty or hardship but barely surmountable or sufferable, by comparing it with a matter utterly impracticable or intolerable.”

Is it not much more likely however that the maxim is based on Bṛihadâraṇyaka Upanishad 1. 3. 7, “यथाश्मानमृत्वा लोष्टो विध्वंसेत” which S'ankara expounds thus:—“यथा लोकेऽश्मानं पाषाणमृत्वा गत्वा प्राप्य लोष्टः पांसुपिण्डः पाषाणचूर्णनायाश्मनि निक्षिप्तः स्वयं विध्वंसेत विस्रंसेत विचूर्णमिवेत्” ? This is referred to in Brahma-sûtrabhâṣya 3. 3. 6. as the “अश्मलोष्टनिदर्शन” and it seems to remind one of the Scripture saying “Whosoever shall fall upon that stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.”

अस्त्रमस्त्रेण शाम्यति ॥

A weapon is silenced by a weapon. Perhaps analogous to the saying “Diamond cuts diamond,” or, “Set a thief to catch a thief.” It occurs in Jnânottama's commentary on Sures'vara's Naishkarmyasûdhi i. 81, where he says:—“नन्वस्त्रमस्त्रेण शाम्यतीति न्यायेन काम्यैः काम्यानां निषिद्धैर्निषिद्धानां निवृत्तिरस्त्वित्यत आह न च काम्यैरिति” ॥

Compare with this Nitisâra viii. 67 :—

“विषं विषेण व्यथते वज्रं वज्रेण भिद्यते ।

गजेन्द्रो दृष्टसारेण गजेन्द्रेणैव बध्यते” ॥

अस्तेहदीपन्यायः ॥

The simile of a Lamp without oil [that is, from which the oil has burnt out]. Raghunâthavarma explains it thus:—“अस्मिन्श्चाध्यासेऽज्ञानं कारणम् । तत्त्वज्ञानेन वातदीपन्यायेन तस्मिन्नुत्तावस्तेह-दीपन्यायेन तदध्यासोऽपि निवर्तते । न च ज्ञानेनैवोभयनिवृत्तिः कुतो न

स्यात् । ज्ञानमज्ञानस्यैव निवर्तकमिति न्यायविरोधात् । द्विविधा हि निवृत्ति- विरोधिना सामग्रीनिवृत्त्या च । यथा वातादिना दीपनाशो यथा च तैलवर्त्यादि- निवृत्त्या दीपनिवृत्तिः । तत्राद्या निवृत्तिरज्ञानस्य द्वितीया कार्यवर्गस्येति बोध्यम् ” ॥

I have met with the following example of the nyâya in Yogavâsiṣṭha 2. 1. 44, a chapter entitled शुकनिर्याणम् :—

“ तत्र वर्षसहस्राणि निर्विकल्पसमाधिना ।

दश स्थित्वा दशमासावात्मन्यस्नेहदीपवत् ” ॥

For the nyâya ज्ञानमज्ञानस्यैव निवर्तकम् see the Third Hand-ful of Popular Maxims; and for निर्विकल्पसमाधि see Vedânta-sâra, pp. 55, 57 &c., and Manual of Hindu Pantheism, pages 109, 110.

अहिकुण्डलन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the snake and its coils. The expression occurs in Brahmasûtra 3. 2. 27, and is explained in the bhâṣya. They read thus:—“उभयव्यपदेशात्त्वहिकुण्डलवत् ॥ ...अत उभयव्यपदेशदर्शनादहिकुण्डलवदत्र तत्त्वं भवितुमर्हति । यथाहिरित्यभेदः कुण्डलाभोग-प्रांशुत्वादीनीति च भेद एवमिहापीति” ॥ Dr. Thibaut's translation is as follows:—“But on account of twofold designation, (the relation of the highest Self to the individual soul has to be viewed) like that of the snake to its coils.....We therefore look on the relation of the highest Self and the soul as analogous to that of the snake and its coils. Viewed as a whole the snake is one, non-different, while an element of difference appears if we view it with regard to its coils, hood, erect posture and so on.” It is akin therefore to the expressions “a forest and its trees,” “a lake and its waters,” so often used by the Vedantists as illustrations of identity. The explanation given by Târânâtha in the Vâchaspatyam does not coincide with the above. He says:—“अहेः सर्पस्य यथा कुण्डलाकृतिवैष्टनं स्वाभाविकं तथा यस्य स्वाभाविकधर्मो व्यपदिश्यते तत्रास्य प्रवृत्तिः” ॥

आकाशमुष्टिहननन्यायः ॥

The maxim of striking the sky with one's fist. A vain attempt at an impossibility. It occurs in the Jaimini chapter of Sarvadarśanasamgraha (page 133 of Bib. Ind. edition, and p. 151 of Jivânanda's) as follows:—"तस्मादुत्पत्तौ ज्ञसौ च परतस्त्वे प्रमाणसंभवात्स्वतःसिद्धं प्रामाण्यमित्येतत्पुनिकृष्माण्डायत इति चेत्तदेतदाकाश-मुष्टिहननायते" ॥ Prof. Cowell has rendered it thus:—"Therefore, as we can prove that authoritativeness is both produced and recognized by means of something external, the Mīmāṃsā tenet 'authoritativeness is self-proved' is like a gourd over-ripe and rotten. This long harangue of our opponent, however, is but a vain attempt to strike the sky with his fist."

Much older instances of the employment of the nyāya are the following:—Tantravārtika, page 170, "यस्तन्तूननुपादाय तुरीमा-न्नपरिग्रहात् । पटं कर्तुं समीहेत स हन्याद्वयोम मुष्टिभिः" ॥ [With this compare the words of a great modern preacher—Dr. Maclaren—"Logic without Revelation is like a spinning-machine without cotton, busy drawing out nothing"]. Pancapādikā page 43, line 10, "तद्यदि नाम शनं लोके सिद्धं तथापि निरस्तप्रपञ्चात्मविषयमसिद्धमाकाशमुष्टिहननवन्न विधातुं शक्यम्." Then, in Nyāyakandali, page 56, line 6, we find the cognate expression "यथा कश्चिन्नितं कृपाण-मच्छेद्यमाकाशं प्रति व्यापारयन्", and again in Nyāyakandali, page 219.

उपयन्नपयन्धर्मो विकरोति हि धर्मिणम् ॥

The appearance or disappearance of a quality (or characteristic) produces a corresponding change in the subject of it. This nyāya is the second line of Naiṣkarmyasiddhi ii. 35, the first being "आगमापायिनिष्टत्वादित्यत्वमियादृशिः" ॥ Although it is included in Raghunātha's list, it ought not, strictly speaking, to find a place amongst popular maxims; but I insert it in order to make a necessary correction in the printed text of the Sarvadarśanasamgraha where it is quoted. On page 161 of the Bibliotheca Indica edition, and on page 182 of that prepared by Jivānanda Vidyāsāgara, we read “ततश्चोपपन्नस्वयन्धर्मो विकरोति हि धर्मिणमिति न्यायेन” and this bad reading of course affects the translation as it appears on page 244 of the volume prepared for Trübner's Oriental Series by Professors Cowell and Gough. The explication given in Vācaspatyam is as follows:—“यथा पूर्वस्य रूपरसादिरूपधर्मपरावृत्तौ रूपरसाद्यन्तरोत्पत्तौ च घटादेर्धर्मिणो विकृतिरेवं यस्य धर्मिणः पूर्वधर्मस्यापगमेऽन्यधर्मस्योत्पत्तिस्तत्रायं न्यायोऽवतरति” ॥

उष्ट्रकण्टकभक्षणन्यायः—

The maxim of a camel's eating thorns. This is not in Raghunātha's list, but in the Vācaspatyam it is explained thus:—“उष्ट्रस्य शमीकण्टकवेधजातदुःखकालेऽपि शमीपत्रभक्षणसुखलेशो यथा तथा-भीष्टविषयोपार्जनदुःखकाले तदुपार्जितद्रव्यजसुखलेशो यत्रोपदिश्यते तत्रास्य प्रवृत्तिः” ॥ I regard this, however, as quite beside the mark. In Brahmasūtrabhāṣya 2. 2. 1. S'ankara, after combating at length the Sāṅkhya theory, that objects are in themselves सुखदुःखमोहात्मक, says:—“शब्दाद्यविशेषेऽपि च भावनाविशेषात्सुखादिविशेषोपलब्धेः,” which Dr. Thibaut renders—“And, further, although the sense-object, such as sound and so on, is one, yet we observe that owing to the difference of the mental impressions (produced by it) differences exist in the effects it produces, one person being affected by it pleasantly, another painfully, and so on.” On which Ānandagiri says:—“शब्दादीति । भावना तत्तज्जातियोग्या वासना तद्विशेषादुष्टादीनां कण्टकादौ सुखादिदर्शनात् &c.” Vācaspatimis'ra, explains the same passage in the Bhāmatī, (pp. 380-1), pointing out that things are not in themselves essentially pleasant or unpleasant, and that what causes pleasure to one may be painful to another, and that even the same thing which at one time is agreeable may at another time be the reverse. Otherwise thorns would be as acceptable to men as they are to a camel. Here are his words:—“यदि पुनरेत एव सुखदुःखस्वभावा

भवेयुस्ततः स्वरूपत्वान्नेमन्तेपि चन्दनः सुखः स्यात् । न हि चन्दनः कदाचिद-चन्दनः । तथा निदाघेष्वपि कुंकुमपंकः सुखो भवेत् । न ह्यसौ कदाचिदकुंकुमपंकः ।
एवं कण्टकः क्रमेलकस्य सुख इति मनुष्यादीनामपि प्राणभृतां सुखः स्यात् । न ह्यसौ कांश्चित्प्रत्येवाकण्टक* इति । तस्मादसुखादिस्वभावा अपि चन्दनकुंकु- मादयो जातिकालावस्थाद्यपेक्षया सुखदुःखादिहेतवो न तु स्वयं सुखादिस्वभावा इति रमणीयम् ”. A camel, then, eats thorns because it likes them; a man does not eat them because he does not like them. May not the maxim, therefore, be the equivalent of our “What's one man's food is another man's poison!” Mr. M. R. Telang has kindly pointed out Vikramāṅkadevacarita i. 29. as illustrating a camel's love of thorns.

एकमनुसन्धित्सतोऽपरं प्रच्यवते ॥

Whilst seeking for one thing he loses another. The saying appears twice, in this form, in the Sarvadars'ana-saṅgraha.
The first instance is in the Ārṇata Section (p. 27 of Bib. Ind. and 33 of Jivānanda's edn.), translated by Professor Cowell:—
“एतद्दोषपरिजिहीर्यया ज्ञानं जडतां नानुकरोतीति ब्रूये हन्त तर्हि तस्या ग्रहणं न स्यादित्येकमनुसन्धित्सतोऽपरं प्रच्यवत इति न्यायाशतः” । “If in your wish to escape this difficulty, you assert that ‘the perception does not follow the object in being insentient,’ then there would be no perception that the object is insentient, and so it is a case of the proverb, While he looks for one thing which he has lost, another drops.”

The second example, from the Akshapāda section (pp. 118 and 134), is as follows:—“नन्वेकमनुसन्धित्सतोऽपरं प्रच्यवत इति न्या- येन दुःखवत्सुखमित्युच्छिद्यत इत्यकाम्योऽयं पक्ष इति चेन्मैवं संस्थाः” ।

“Nor may you retort on us that we have fulfilled the proverb of ‘seeking one thing and dropping another in the search, since we have abolished happiness as being ever tainted with some incidental pain &c.”

* The printed text wrongly reads कण्टक for अकण्टक

In the Khaṇḍanakhaṇḍakhāḍya (page 447) and in Mallinātha on Tārṅikaraksā, pp. 7 and 25, we meet with the nyāya in another form, namely “एकं सन्धित्सतोऽपरं प्रच्यवते” which means “ Whilst trying to reunite one [piece of a broken vessel] another falls off.”

एकवृन्तगतफलद्वयन्यायः ॥

The maxim of two fruits attached to one stalk. Used by writers on Alankāra to illustrate a particular kind of Paronomasia, namely the coalescence of two meanings under one word. It was first pointed out to me by Mr. F. W. Thomas, Assistant Librarian to the India Office, he having met with it in the commentary on Kāvyaḍarsa's ii. 310. I have since found it in use in the Alankārasarvasva, Kāvya-pradīpa, Sāhitya-darpana, Rasagangādhara, Alankāra-kaustubha, and Sāhitya-kaumudī, in each case under the figure श्लेष. The maxim finds a place in Marāṭhī literature also, and is regarded by Molesworth as equivalent to our proverb “Killing two birds with one stone,”

कदम्बकोरकन्यायः ॥ ✓

The maxim of the buds of the Kadamba tree. They are said to burst forth simultaneously. As, for example, in Hemacandra's Paris'ishṭaparvan i. 241:—

“पित्रा स्वपाणिपद्मेन स्मृत्यमानोऽवनीपतिः । उरकोरककदम्बामो बभूव पुलकांकुरैः” ॥

In the Nyāyamanjarī, pages 214 and 228, and in the Bhāṣā-parichchheda (verse 166) this nyāya is given as an illustration of the way in which sound is produced. The last-mentioned reads thus:—

वीचीतरङ्गन्यायेन तदुत्पत्तिस्तु कीर्तिता ।

कदम्बकोरकन्यायादुत्पत्तिः कस्यचिन्मते ॥

The commentary, Siddhântamuktâvali, however, explains कदम्बगोलकन्यायात् and this is the form given to the maxim in the Vâchaspatyam which explains it as follows:—"कदम्बगोलकस्य गोलाकारकदम्बस्य सर्वावयवेषु यथा युगपत्पुष्पोद्गम एवं सर्वप्रदेशेषु युगपद्यत्र प्रसरस्तत्रास्य प्रवृत्तिः" ॥ In Vedantin Mahâdeva's comment on Sâmkhyasûtra V. 103, we have a third form, namely कदम्ब-मुकुलन्याय.

कफोणिगुडन्यायः ॥

The maxim of treacle on the elbow. Used of something tantalizingly inaccessible. It is found in Udayana's Âlmatattva-viveka, page 26:—अस्तु तर्हि भावस्वरूपातिरिक्ता निवृत्तिर्नास्तीत्यस्य सोपाख्येति शेषः । नन्वयमपि क्षणभंगस्योद्धारः स च कफोणिगुडायितो वर्तते भवतु वा निवृत्तिरसमर्था तथाप्यहेतुकत्वे तस्याः किमायातम्" ॥ Then in the Akshapâda chapter of Sarvadars'anasangraha (page 116 of Bib. Indica, and 132 of Jivânanda's edition) we read:—"ननु दुःखात्यन्तोच्छेदोऽपवर्ग इत्येतदद्यापि कफोणिगुडायितं वर्तते तत्कथं सिद्धवत्कृत्य व्यवहियत इति चेन्मैवम्" ॥ which Prof. Cowell translates as follows:—"But is not your definition of the summum bonum, liberation, that is, the absolute abolition of pain, after all as much beyond our reach as treacle on the elbow is to the tongue; why then is this continually put forth as if it were established beyond all dispute?" In a footnote he says, "Compare the English proverb 'As soon as the cat can lick her ear.'" In the Vâchaspatyam, however, the nyâya is explained as meaning the absence of a thing, not its inaccessibility. It says:—"कफोणौ गुडाभावेऽपि तदाशया यथा लेहनमेवं यत्र वस्त्वसद्भावेऽपि तत्प्रत्याशया व्यापारभेदस्तत्रास्य प्रवृत्तिः" ॥ The St. Petersburg Lexicon (s. v. कफोणिगुडाय्) renders it "like a ball on the elbow."

काकतालीयन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the crow and the Palmyra fruit. A crow alighted on a Palmyra tree, and at the same moment some of the fruit fell on its head and killed it. The maxim is therefore used to illustrate a startling and purely accidental occurrence. It is well explained in the Kāśīkāvṛtti on Pāṇini 5. 3. 106 (as quoted by Dr. Eggeling in a footnote to Gaṇaratnamahodadhi iii. 195):—“काकतालीयम् । अजाकृपाणीयम् । अन्धकवर्तकीयम् । अतर्कितोपनतं चित्रीकरणमुच्यते । तत्कथम् । काकस्यागमनं यादृच्छिकं तालस्य पतनं च । तेन तालेन पतता काकस्य वधः कृतः । एवमेव देवदत्तस्य तत्रागमनं दस्यूनां चोपनिपातः । तैश्च तस्य वधः कृतः । तत्र यो देवदत्तस्य दस्यूनां च समागमः स काकतालसमागमसदृशः” ॥

We find the saying in Pañchadās'i ix. 12 as follows:—“अयथावस्तुविज्ञानात्फलं लभ्यत ईप्सितम् । काकतालीयतः सोऽयं संवादिभ्रम उच्यते” ॥ And again in Ānandavardhana's Dhvanyāloka ii. 16, and in Nyāyavārtikatātparyoṭīkā, page 401. There is a capital example of it, too, in the following verses of the Nyāyamānjari (page 106):—“अपि चानागतं ज्ञानमस्मदादेरपि क्वचित् ॥ प्रमाणं प्रातिभं श्रो मे भ्रातागन्तेति दृश्यते ॥ नानर्थजं न सन्दिग्धं न बाधविधुरीकृतम् । न दुष्टकारणं चेति प्रमाणमिदमिष्यताम् ॥ क्वचिद्बाधकयोगश्चेदस्तु तस्याप्रमाणता । यत्रापरेषुरभ्येति भ्राता तत्र किमुच्यताम् ॥ काकतालीयमिति चेन्न प्रमाणप्रदर्शितम् । वस्तु तत्काकतालीयमिति भवितुमर्हति” ॥ In his commentary on S'āntiparva clxxvii. 11, Nilakantha Govind gives another, and less probable, definition of the maxim. He says:—“तालः करतलयोः शब्दजनकः संयोगस्तस्मिन् क्रियमाणे उत्पतन्काको दैवात्तत्र तालाभ्यामाक्रान्तोऽभूत्तदेतत्काकतालीयमिर्युच्यते । काकस्पर्शसमकालं तालफलस्य तालवृक्षस्य वा पतनं तदित्यन्ये” ॥ Molesworth explains it thus:—“Said when any occurrence synchronizing with, or immediately following, some other seems, however in truth independent of it, to have been occasioned by it;—as the fruit of a Palmyra falling at the alighting upon it of a crow, may appear to fall in consequence.”

काकदन्तपरीक्षान्यायः ॥

The maxim of the examination of a crow's teeth. Used of any useless and manifestly fruitless enquiry. It occurs in the Buddhist treatise Nyāyabinduṭīkā, page 1, and again on page 3, line 8. Also in S'ankara's bhāṣya on Kaṭha-Upaniṣad i. 25 ["नचिकेतो मरणं मानुषाक्षीः"] :—“नचिकेतो मरणं मरणसंबन्धं प्रभं प्रेत्यास्ति नास्तीति काकदन्तपरीक्षारूपं मानुषाक्षीमैवं प्रष्टुमर्हसि” ॥ We find it too in Abhinavagupta on Dhvaṇyāloka iii. 19 (page 163 of Paṇḍit Durgāprasāda's edition) as follows :—“व्यंग्योऽर्थो भवतु सा वाभूत् कस्तत्राभिनिवेशः । काकदन्तपरीक्षाप्रायमेव तस्यादिति भावः” ॥ It appears also in Pancopādikā, pages 53 and 68, and in many works besides. In Nyāyamanjarī, page 7, line 5, it takes the form of वायसदशनविमर्शन्याय.

↓ काकाक्षिगोलकन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the crow's eyeball. Crows are popularly supposed to have only one eye, which, as occasion requires, moves from the cavity on one side into that on the other. The maxim is used of a word which appears only once in a sentence but which applies to two portions of it; or of persons or things fulfilling a double purpose. I have met with it in the former sense in Svātmārām's Hathayogapradīpikā iv. 10, “विविधैरासनैः कुम्भैर्विचित्रैः करणैरपि,” on which the commentator, Brahmānanda, says “विचित्रैरिति काकाक्षिगोलकन्यायेनोभयत्र संबध्यते.” Also in Abhinavagupta's comment on Dhvaṇyāloka iii. 1, “पदानां स्मारकत्वेऽपि पदमात्रावभासिनः,” where he remarks “अपिशब्दः काकाक्षिन्यायेनोभयत्रापि संबध्यते” ॥ Of its use in the second sense, we have an interesting example in Kāmandaki's Nīṭisāra, a work ascribed to the third century before Christ. Chapter xi. 24 reads thus :—“बलिनोर्द्विषतोर्मध्ये वाचात्मानं समर्पयन् । द्वैधीभावेन वर्त्तत काकाक्षिवदलक्षितः.”

काशकुशावलम्बनन्यायः ॥

The maxim of catching at straws. The being driven from one argument or position to another equally untenable. Tâiâ-nâtha says:—“नद्यादौ पतितस्य संतरणानभिज्ञस्य यथा कुशकाशावलम्बनं निरर्थकमेवं प्रबल्युक्तिषु निराकृतासु दुर्बल्युक्त्यवलम्बनं निरर्थकमित्येवमवलम्बनस्य निरर्थकत्वविवक्षायामस्य प्रवृत्तिः” ॥ The expression “काशकुशावलम्बनकल्पं” occurs in the Ārḥata chapter (p. 25 of Bib. Ind. and p. 31 of Jivānanda's edition) of the Sarvadars'ana-sangraha, and again in the Pāṇini chapter (pp. 142 and 161); and in both places Prof. Cowell has rendered it “like a drowning man's catching at a straw.” We have the same, though not as a compound, in Naishkarmyasiddhi i. 76,—“एवं निराकृतोऽपि काशं कुशं वावलम्ब्याह.” It appears also in Nyāyamānjarī page 183; and again, as follows, on page 551:—“तस्मात्प्रमाणतोऽशक्ये शक्ये वा वस्तुनिर्णये । एवं प्रायमयुक्तं यत्कुशकाशावलंबनम्” ॥ In Tantravārtika 1. 3. 18 (page 213) we have the maxim in the following couplet:—“अर्थवत्त्वं न चेज्जातं मुख्यैर्यस्य प्रयोजनैः । तस्यानुपक्रिकेवाशा कुशकाशावलंबिनी” ॥

In expounding Brahmasūtrabhāṣya 3. 3. 29, Ānandagiri quotes Amarakośa 2. 4. 166 (अस्त्री कुशं कुशो दर्भः पवित्रमथ कर्तृगम्) as follows:—“अत एवास्त्री कुशमित्यमरसिंहेनानुशिष्टम्.” Does this throw any new light on the date of Amara? In his History of Indian Literature (page 230), Professor Weber tells us that the Amarakośa cannot be widely separated from those dictionaries which we know to belong to the eleventh, twelfth, and following centuries; whilst Professor Macdonell, in his recently issued History of Sanskrit Literature (page 433) assigns that work to about 500 A. D.

कूपमण्डूकन्यायः ॥

The maxim of a frog in a well. It is applied to an inexperienced person brought up in the narrow circle of home, and ignorant of public life and mankind. "Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits" (Two Gentlemen of Verona i. 1). The following passage from Prasannarāghava-Nāṭaka i. (page 13) illustrates the use of the term:—"कथं मामपि दशदिग्विलासिनी-कर्णपूरीकृतकीर्तिपल्लवं त्रिभुवनवीरनामधेयं कूपमंडूक इव सागरमविख्यातमप-दिशसि" ॥ So, too, Upamitibhavaprapancā, page 828:—

“यो न निर्गत्य निःशेषां विलोकयति मेदिनीम् ।

अनेकाद्भुतवृत्तान्तां स नरः कूपदर्दुरः” ॥

कूपयन्त्रघटिकान्यायः ॥

The maxim of the pots attached to the water-wheel of a well. As the wheel revolves, some of the pots are going up and others are going down; some are full whilst others are empty; and so it is applied to illustrate the changes and chances of this mortal life. This is well put in Mṛichchhakatika x. 60:—

“कांश्चित्तुच्छयति प्रपूरयति वा कांश्चिन्नयत्युन्नतिं
कांश्चित्पातविधौ करोति च पुनः कांश्चिन्नयत्याकुलान् ।
अन्योन्यं प्रतिपक्षसंहतिमिमां लोकस्थितिं बोधय-
न्नेव क्रीडति कूपयन्त्रघटिकान्यायप्रसक्तो विधिः” ॥

Tāranātha's explanation of this maxim is extremely tame, not to say nonsensical! According to him, it is intended to teach that as a pot is raised by the water-wheel from a deep well, so, by means of instruction, the essence of the S'āstras is drawn up, deep though they are by reason of their complexity! See the cognate घटीयन्नन्याय in Second and Third Handful.

कूर्माङ्गन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the limbs of the tortoise. Its meaning and application will be apparent from the following passage taken from the Sāṅkhya section of Sarvadarś'anasangraha (page 150 Bib. Ind. and 170 of Jivānanda's edition):—"यथा हि कूर्म-स्याङ्गानि कूर्मशरीरे निविशमानानि तिरोभवन्ति निःसरन्ति चाविर्भवन्त्येवं कारणस्य तन्वादेः पटादयो विशेषा निःसरन्त आविर्भवन्त उत्पद्यन्त इत्युच्यन्ते निविशमानास्तिरोभवन्तो विनश्यन्तीत्युच्यन्ते । न पुनरसतामुत्पत्तिः सतां वा विनाशः” ॥ Prof. Cowell renders it thus:—“As the limbs of a tortoise, when they retire within its shell, are concealed, and, when they come forth, are revealed, so the particular effects, as cloth &c., of a cause, as threads &c., when they come forth and are revealed, are said to be produced; and when they retire and are concealed, they are said to be destroyed; but there is no such thing as the production of the non-existent, or the destruction of the existent.” Very similar language is used by Vâchaspati Miśra, too, in his Sāṅkhyatattvakaumudī 9 and 15. See also, Kshurikā-Upanishad 3. and Gītā ii. 58.

कृत्वाचिन्तान्यायः ॥

The nyāya stands thus in Tantravārtikā 3. 4. 1:—“यस्तु भाष्यकारेणोपन्यासः कृतः स कृत्वाचिन्तान्यायेनेति द्रष्टव्यम्.” On applying to my friend Mr. Arthur Venis for an elucidation of the nyāya he replied as follows:—“I have always understood it as the method of granting to your adversary what later you mean to refute, for which another common expression is अभ्युपगमवाद. The word कृत्वा is elliptical for इति कृत्वा, that is, having admitted your adversary’s point, you proceed to the चिन्ता or discussion of it.” This view seems to be confirmed by the fact that in Sāstradīpikā, pages 615, 666, 707, 710, and 739, it takes the form of “इति कृत्वा चिन्त्यते,” and that in S’abara on Jaimini 11. 3. 16. and 12, 2. 11, we read at the close of each “इत्येवं कृत्वा चिन्त्यते । कृत्वाचिन्तेयम्.”

In his Saddars’anacintanikā, Mr. M. M. Kunte gives three different renderings of the expression. On page 650 (where it is attached to the title of the adhikaraṇa) its meaning is said to be “a point already discussed,” and he claims for it the authority of Mādhava; then, on page 1999, it is rendered "an adjustment not founded on fact;" and, finally, on page 2040, "the examination of a subject after merely granting an opponent's statement." This third rendering coincides with that of Mr. Venis.

I may add that Prof. Gangânâtha Jhâ tells me that a paṇḍit would explain the term thus:—"कृत्वा (यद्यप्येतद्विषयकसंशयो नोदेति तथापि तद्विषयगतसकलविचारस्योपन्यासार्थं कल्पनां कृत्वा) चिन्ता (विचारः)." Or, as the Professor himself puts it, "the bhâsya has introduced certain points of discussion simply for the sake of argument, in order to exhaust all possible alternatives with regard to the subject matter of the adhikaraṇa." I have not met with the nyâya anywhere but in works on Mīmāṃsâ.

क्षीरं विहायारोचकग्रस्तस्य सौवीररुचिमनुभवति ॥

"Leaving the milk suitable to the dyspeptic, he enjoys the sour gruel." The nyâya is found in this form in the Akṣhapāda section of Sarvadars'anasangraha (P. 118 of Bib. Ind. edition and p. 134 of Jivānanda's ed.) as follows:—"बन्धु सुखमभिव्यक्तिर्मुक्तिरिति पक्षं परित्यज्य दुःखनिवृत्तिरेव मुक्तिरिति स्वीकारः क्षीरं विहायारोचकग्रस्तस्य सौवीररुचिमनुभवतीति चेत्तदेतन्नाटकपक्षपतितं त्वद्वच इत्युपेक्ष्यते" ॥

Prof. Cowell translates it thus:—"But if you give up the view that liberation is the manifestation of happiness, and then accept such a view as that which holds it to be only the cessation of pain, does not your conduct resemble that of the dyspeptic patient who refused sweet milk and preferred sour rice-gruel? Your satire, however, falls powerless, as fitter for some speech in a play [rather than for a grave philosophical argument]." There can be little doubt however that Mādhava took the nyâya from Udayana's Ātmatattvavivēka where it appears (on page 56, line 5,) as "क्षीरं विहाय रुचिररोचकग्रस्तस्य सौवीरे." I know of no other instance of it, and it is not in Raghunātha's Laukikanyâyasangraha.

खल्वाटविल्वीयन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the bald (or bare-headed) man, and the woodapple. Vardhamāna (iii. 195) explains it thus:—“यथा खल्वाटः पर्यटन्नतर्कितं श्रीफलतरोरधस्तादागतो दैववशाच्च बिल्वमुपरि पतितं तद्वदन्योऽप्युभयवस्तुसंयोग एवमुच्यते” ॥ Bhartṛihari, in his Nītiśataka 90, brings the bald man under a palm tree:—

“खल्वाटो दिवसेश्वरस्य किरणैः संतापितो मस्तके
वान्छन्देशमनातपं विधिवशात्तालस्य मूलं गतः ।
तत्राप्यस्य महाफलेन वतता भ्रष्टं सशब्दं शिरः
प्रायो गच्छति यत्र भाग्यरहितस्तत्रैव यान्त्यापदः” ॥

This maxim belongs to the same class as अजाकृपाणीय and काक-तालीय, which see.

गगनरोमन्थन्यायः ॥

The maxim of ruminating on ether. Equivalent to beating the air. It is found twice in the Sarvadars'anasangraha. First, in the Rāmānuja section (page 57 of Jivānanda's edition, and 47 of Bib. Ind.):—“तदेतद्गगनरोमन्थायितम्”, which Prof. Gough renders “All this is about as profitable as it would be for a ruminant animal to ruminate on ether.” Secondly, in the Pāṇini section (pages 162 and 143 respectively):—“तदेतद्गगनरोमन्थकल्पम्”, rendered by Prof. Cowell by “All this is only the ruminating of empty ether.” In the Nyāyamanjari page 453, it appears in a slightly different form, in the expression “व्योम्नि रोमन्थकेलिवत्;” and in S'ālikā p. 154, and Nyāyamakaranda, page 129, we meet with गगनग्रासकल्प.

गडुरिकाप्रवाहन्यायः ॥

The maxim of a continuous rush of sheep. It is used to indicate the blind following of others like a flock of sheep. So the Vāchaspatyam, which says:—“गडुरिकानामवीनां संघादेका

चेन्नद्यादौ पतति तदा तत्संघान्तर्गताः सर्वेऽपि वार्यमाणा अपि तत्र पतन्तीति लोकप्रसिद्ध्या यत्र वार्यमाणानामपि अनिष्टमार्गे धावनं तत्रास्य प्रवृत्तिः” ॥

The expression occurs in Chap. viii. (page 214) of the Kāvya-prakāśa where a very helpful note of Maheśachandra's will be found; and also in Chap. vi, page 188, of the Sāhityadarpaṇa, which however, Mr. Pramadādāsa Mitra has rendered, “in pursuance of established custom.”

It is found, also, on pages 86 and 125 of Abhinavagupta's commentary on the Dhvanyāloka, and in the opening part of Kāvya-pradīpa viii (p. 327). There seems to be much difference of opinion as to the correct form of the first word of the maxim, since it appears in the four varieties of गडुरिका, गडुलिका, गडुारिका and गडुालिका.

गुडजिह्विकान्यायः ॥

The maxim of the tongue [smeared] with treacle [in order to disguise an unpalatable draught]. The Vāchaspatyam thus explains its use:—“यथा तिक्तताभिया निम्बपानमकुर्वाणस्य बालस्य जिह्वायां गुडलेपं दत्त्वा पित्रादिस्तं निम्बं पाययति एवमर्थवादवाक्यानि बह्वायाससाध्ये कर्मण्यप्रवर्त्तमानं पुरुषं स्वर्गाक्षय्यादिकं ध्रावयित्वा प्रवर्त्तयन्ति । फलश्रुतिरपि रोचनार्थः” ॥

An excellent example of this is found in Kāvya-pradīpa, p. 7:—“ये सुकुमारमतयोऽतिसुखिस्वभावा राजकुमारादयो नीरसे नीतिशास्त्रे प्रवर्त्तयितुमशक्यास्तान्काव्यं कान्तेव सरसतापादनेनाभिमुखीकृत्योपदेशं ग्राहयति गुडजिह्विकया शिशूनिवौषधम् । यथाहुः ।

स्वादुकाव्यरसोन्मिश्रं वाक्यार्थमुपभुञ्जते ।

प्रथमालीढमधवः पियन्ति कटु भेषजम्” ॥

It is employed in a similar manner by Abhinavagupta in his comment on Dhvanyāloka iii. 30, and by the author of Padamanjarī in the early part of his work (the Pandit x. 254); and, somewhat less clearly, in Bhāmati, pages 342, 534, and Nyāya-vārtikatātparyāṭikā, pages 438, 441.

गोबलीवर्दन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the cattle and the bull. In the Pandit for October 1867, Rājarāma Sāstri expounded it thus:—“यत्र गाः कालय बलीवर्दे चेत्युच्यते तत्र गोपदेनैव बलीवर्दपदसिद्धौ बलीवर्दपदं दुर्दम्यत्वज्ञापनपरत्वेन सफलमिति कल्प्यते” ॥ That given in the Vācaspatyam is somewhat fuller:—“बलीवर्दस्य गोविशेषत्वेऽपि बलीवर्दस्य ह्यदिति गोत्वेन बोधनार्थं यथा प्रयोगस्तथान्ययोः सामान्यविशेषरूपयोर्ह्यदिति बोधनार्थं यत्र प्रयोगस्तत्रास्य प्रवृत्तिः” ॥ In his exposition of Manu viii. 28, where six classes of women are enumerated as having a claim to the king's protection, Kullūka says:—“अत्र चानेकशब्दोपादाने गोबलीवर्दन्यायेन पुनरुक्तिपरीहारः” ॥ The commentators Rāghavānanda and Govindarāja also quote the maxim in the same connection, and we have it in Kāryaprādīpa vii. 11 (page 300). Vācaspatimisra, too, makes frequent use of it. It occurs in Bhāmātī, pages 518, 536; and in Nyāyavārtikatātparyatīkā, pages 11, 118, 119 and 404. It belongs to the same class as ब्राह्मणवसिष्टन्याय and ब्राह्मणपरिव्राजकन्याय.

गोमयपायसीयन्यायः ॥

The maxim of cowdung as a milky preparation. Some stupid person is supposed to argue that cowdung is made of milk, because it comes from the cow; hence it is used to denote an utterly absurd argument or statement. It occurs in Vyāsa's bhāṣhya on Yogasūtra i. 32. He says:—“कथंचित्समाधीयमानमप्येतद्गोमयपायसीयन्यायमाक्षिपति” ॥ On which the Yogavārtika remarks:—“गोमयं पायसं गन्धस्वादित्यादिन्यायमतदूषणं समाधीयमानमप्याक्षिपति तिरस्करोति” ॥ See, too, Nyāyavārtikatātparyatīkā, p. 435.

It is found also in the Baudha section of the Sarvadarśana-saṅgraha (page 18 of Bib. Ind. and 22 of Jivānanda's edition) in the following sentence:—“एवं चायमभेदसाधको हेतुर्गोमयपायसीयन्यायवदाभासतां भजेत्”, which Professor Gough renders “Thus this argument which you adduce to prove that there is difference between subject and object, turns out a mere absurdity, like milky food made of cowdung."

The compound गोमयपायसीय is included in Gaṇaratnamahodadhī iii. 196, but Vardhamāna did not explain it.

घटकुटीप्रभातन्यायः ॥

The maxim of day-break in the vicinity of the toll-collector's hut. A man, anxious to avoid paying toll, takes another road, but losing his way in the dark, finds himself, at day-break, in the vicinity of that very toll-gate! The saying is employed to illustrate उद्देश्यासिद्धि, as Prof. Cowell puts it; that is, failure to accomplish a desired object. It occurs in the Pāṇini section of Sarvadarśana-saṅgraha as follows:—"ननु स्फोटवाचकतापक्षेऽपि प्रागुक्तविकल्पप्रसरेण घटकुटीप्रभातादितमिति चेत्तदेतन्मनोराज्यविजृम्भणं वैषम्यसंभवात्", which is thus rendered by Prof. Cowell:—"But even on your own hypothesis that there is a certain thing called sphoṭa which expresses the meaning, the same untenable alternative will recur which we discussed before; and therefore it will only be a case of the proverb that 'the dawn finds the smuggler with the revenue-officer's house close by'. This, however, is only the inflation of the world of fancy from the wide difference between the two cases."

S'riharsha, too, used the simile in his Khaṇḍanakhaṇḍakhāḍya (page 35):—"तर्हि कारणस्य सत्तामभ्युपगतवानसीति घटकुटीप्रभातमिति चेत्त" ॥ See also Siddhāntaleś'a, pages 40 and 116; Vivaraṇapramēyasāṅgraha, page 62; Advaitabrahmasiddhi, pages 63, 146, 219, 371; Citsukhī, i. 12; ii. 24 (Paṇḍit iv. 518; v. 510), and Kusumāñjali iii. 19 (page 496).

घुणाक्षरन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the letter made by the wood-worm ghuna. This worm bores holes in wood and in books which sometimes assume the shape of a letter of the alphabet; hence its use to intimate the occurrence of something quite accidental. Here is Vardhamāna's (iii. 195) description of it :—घुणोत्किरणात्कथंचिन्निष्पन्नमक्षरं घुणाक्षरम् । तदिव यदकुशलेन देवान्निष्पद्यते तद्वुणाक्षरीयम्” ॥

The simile is found in the opening part of Prasannarāghava (page 9) as follows:—“ अहो घुणाक्षरन्यायो यदिदं भ्रमरद्वयं प्रति मयोक्तं वन्दिद्वयं प्रति फलितं वचः” ॥ Also in Rajatarangini iv. 167 :—“ त्रीन्वारान्समरे जित्वा जितं मेने स मुमुनिम् । सकृज्जयमरेर्वीरा मन्यन्ते हि घुणाक्षरम्” ॥ Māgha iii. 58 may also be referred to.

चन्द्रचन्द्रिकान्यायः ॥

The maxim of the moon and its light. Used of two inseparable things. It is found in Ānandagiri's S'ankaravijaya, page 124 :—“ अतः सर्वदेवकारणस्य रुद्रस्य या शक्तिश्चन्द्रचन्द्रिकान्यायेन तदुद्बोधरूपिणी स्वाधीनबलमेति प्रसिद्धा सैव भवानी” ॥

चौरापराधान्माण्डव्यनिग्रहन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the punishment of Māṇḍavya for the crime committed by robbers. The story of the Rishi Anī-Māṇḍavya is told at length in Ādiparva cvii, cviii. Whilst he was practising severe austerities, in conjunction with the mauna-vrata, some robbers concealed themselves and their plunder in his Ās'rama. The king's guard found them there, and, believing the sage to be implicated in the affair, carried him off together with them and impaled them all together! Māṇḍavya was eventually removed from the stake, but its point (अणी) remained in him; hence the name, given him by the people, of Anī-Māṇḍavya. The maxim is found in the Pūrṇaprajna chapter of Sarvadarśanasangraha (page 73 of Jivānanda's edition, and 62 of Bib. Ind.) :—“ तस्मान्न भेदप्रत्यक्षं सुप्रसरमिति चेत्किं वस्तुस्वरूपभेदवादिनं प्रति इमानि दूषणान्युद्बुध्यन्ते किंवा धर्मभेदवादिनं प्रति । प्रथमे चौरापराधान्माण्डव्यनिग्रहन्यायापातः” ॥ But its earliest occurrence is in Ātma-tattvariveka, page 70, line 15, where we read “एवं हि चौरापराधेन

वक्तव्यं माण्डव्यनिग्रहः स्यात् ॥ and it was from this source that the Khandanakâra, too, derived the nyâya together with several pages of context! Compare pages 633-636 of S'riharsa's work with pages 70 and 71 of Udayana's.

छत्रिन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the men with umbrellas. The thought here is of a crowd of men, many of them with umbrellas up, and so all seeming to have them. Its application will be apparent from the examples which follow. We have one in S'ankara's bhâshya on Kaṭha-Upanishad iii. 1 ("ऋतं पिबन्तौ" &c.):— "एकस्तत्र कर्मफलं पिबति भुङ्क्ते नेतरस्तथापि पातृसंबन्धात्पिबन्तावित्युच्यते छत्रिन्यायेन" ॥ Again, in his bhâshya on Vedântasûtra 3. 3. 34, where the same text is expounded:— "ऋतं पिबन्तावित्यत्र तु जीवे पिबत्यशनायाद्यतीतः परमात्मापि साहचर्याच्छत्रिन्यायेन पिबतीत्युपचर्यते" ॥ On the former of these two passages, the commentator Gopâla Yatindra says:— "छत्रिन्यायेनेति । यथा लोके छत्रिणो गच्छन्तीति प्रयोगे सपरिवारे राज्ञि गच्छति छत्र्यच्छत्रिसमुदाये छत्रिशब्दो वर्तत एकसमूहवाहित्वेनैव पिबदपिबत्समुदाये पिबतिर्वर्तत इत्यर्थः ॥

I have met with the maxim in the Kuvalayananda also under the figure उल्लास, and in Ânandagiri on Brahmasûtra-bhâshya 1. 2. 11; 1. 4. 12.

But the nyâya is found long before S'ankara's time, and perhaps originated with S'abara, in whose bhâshya on Jaimini 1. 4. 28 we read "यथा छत्रिणो गच्छन्तीत्येकेन छत्रिणा सर्वे लक्ष्यन्ते"; and in Tantravârtika 1. 4. 13 "तस्मादेकदेशस्थैरपि विश्वेदेवैरुपलक्षितानां छत्रिन्यायेन तत्प्रख्यतयैव सर्वेषां नामधेयत्वम्" ॥

तमोदीपन्यायः ॥

The maxim of darkness and the lamp. This is found in the Vedântasiddhântamuktâvali (page 125) where we read:—

“ तदयं तमोदीपन्यायः । तथाहि । अज्ञानं ज्ञानुमिच्छेद्यो मानेनात्यन्तमूढधीः । स तु नूनं तमः पश्येदीपेनोत्तमतेजसा ” ॥ “ Hence the well-known illustration of darkness and the lamp:—Thus that dullest of dull-heads who would cognize Nescience by means of a pramāṇa, would forsooth go looking for darkness with a brilliant lamp.”

This verse is most probably based on that of Sures'vara in Taittirīyavārtika 2. 1. 177:—

“ प्रमाणोत्पन्नया दृष्ट्या योऽविद्यां द्रष्टुमिच्छति ।
दीपेनासौ ध्रुवं पश्येद्ब्रह्माकुक्षिगतं तमः ” ॥

दग्धपटन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the burnt cloth. When a piece of cloth, or a leaf, is thrown into the fire and consumed, its outline is still visible in the charred remains; and this the Vedāntists use to illustrate the unreality and unsubstantiality of all phenomena. It occurs twice in Nṛsiṃhasarasvatī's commentary on the Vedāntasāra, namely on pages 55 and 66, as follows:—“यद्वा सर्वं खल्विदं ब्रह्मेतदात्म्यमिदं सर्वमित्यादिश्रुतिबलात्सर्वमहमिति गिरिनदी-समुद्रात्मकं सर्वं जगत्स्वाभिन्नसच्चिदानन्दब्रह्मत्वेनानुभूय तस्य दग्धपटन्यायेन प्रपञ्चभानेऽप्यद्वैतं सच्चिदानन्दलक्षणं वस्तु भासत एवेत्यर्थः” ॥ (Page 55).

“नन्वेतादृशस्य जीवन्मुक्तस्य देहेन्द्रियादिभानमस्ति न वेत्याशङ्क्य दग्धपटन्यायेनेन्द्रजालनिर्मितसौधसमुद्रादिवच्च बाधितानुवृत्त्या मिथ्यात्वेन भानेऽपि परमार्थतया भानं नेत्याह अयमित्यादिना न पश्यतीत्यन्तेन” ॥ (Page 66).

दण्डापूपिकान्यायः ॥

The maxim of the stick and the cakes. If a number of cakes (chapātis) are attached to a stick, and the stick is carried off or eaten by mice, the inference is that the cakes have shared the same fate. The application of the maxim is obvious. In the Sāhityakaumudī (xi. 8), and in the Kuralayānanda (page 244), it is used to illustrate the figure अर्थापत्ति and काव्यार्थापत्ति respectively.

“दण्डापूपिकयान्यार्थागमोऽर्थापत्तिरिष्यते ॥ ८ ॥ मूपिकेण दण्डो भक्षितश्चे- दिहस्थः पूपोऽपि तेन भक्षित इति न्यायो दण्डापूपिका । तयान्यार्थागमोऽर्थान्तर-प्रत्ययोऽर्थापत्तिरित्यर्थः” ॥ (Sāh.)

“कैमुत्येनार्थसंसिद्धिः काव्यार्थापत्तिरिष्यते* । स जितस्त्वन्मुखेनेन्दुः का वार्त्ता
सरसीरुहाम् ॥ अत्र स इत्यनेन पद्मानि येन जितानीति विवक्षितं तथा च सोऽपि
येन जितस्तेन पद्मानि जितानीति किमु वक्तव्यमिति दण्डापूपिकान्यायेन पद्मजय-रूपस्यार्थस्य संसिद्धिः काव्यार्थापत्तिः । तान्त्रिकाभिमतार्थापत्तिव्यावर्त्तनाय का- व्येति विशेषणम्” ॥ (Kuv.).

See also Bṛihadâraṇyakopaniṣad-bhâṣhyavârtika, page 909, verse 135.

देहलीदीपन्यायः ॥

The maxim of a lamp on the threshold. A lamp so placed gives light both inside and outside the house, and is therefore used as an illustration of anything which fulfills a double purpose. S'abara refers to such a lamp in his bhâṣhya on Jaimini 12. 1. 3 :—“यथा प्रासादे कृतः प्रदीपः सन्निधानाद्राजमार्गेऽप्यु- पकरोति”. There is a similar expression, too, in Kuvalayannanda, page 97. Another good example of the nyâya is found in the commentary on Saptapadârthi, page 52. The text stands thus:—“द्रव्यानारंभकं कार्यद्रव्यमन्त्यावययि ॥ प्रागभाव-वत्कार्यम् ॥ भोगायतनमन्त्यावययि शरीरम्” ॥ on which Mâdhava Sara-svati remarks:—“शरीरलक्षणेऽन्त्यावययिपदज्ञानाय तल्लक्षणमाह द्रव्येति । यद्यप्युद्देशानन्तरं लक्षणस्य वक्तव्यत्वाच्छरीरलक्षणानन्तरं भोगादिवदन्त्यावयवी
लक्षयितुमुचितस्तथाप्यत्र द्रव्यपदव्यवच्छेद्यत्वेन प्राप्तत्वाद्देहलीप्रदीपन्यायेनो- भयत्रोपकार्यतयात्रैव लक्षित इत्यदोषः” ॥

My friend Professor Cowell pointed out another instance of the use of the nyâya in Ânandagiri's S'ankaravijaya xi, page
82. The maxim is akin to काकाक्षिगोलकन्याय and जामात्रर्थं श्रपितस्य सूपादेरतिथ्युपकारकत्वम् ॥

* The author of Hasagangâdhara finds fault with this definition. See page 487 of Durgâprasâda's edition, Bombay 1888.

नष्टाश्वदग्धरथन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the lost horses and burnt chariot. This is based on the story of two men travelling in their respective chariots, and one of them losing his horses and the other having his chariot burnt, through the outbreak of a fire in the village in which they were putting up for the night. The horses that were left were harnessed to the remaining chariot, and the two men pursued their journey together. Its teaching is—union for mutual advantage. That the story is very old is clear from the fact that the saying is quoted in the 16th vārtika (“संयोगो वा नष्टाश्वदग्धरथवत्”) to Pāṇini 1. 1. 50, and again in Śābara's bhāṣya 2. 1. 1. It appears also in Sures'vara's Bṛihadāraṅga-bhāṣyavārtika 2. 1. 38, which reads thus:—“नष्टाश्वदग्धरथवन्न्यायं चाश्रित्य भूमिपम् । ग्राह मानुषवित्ताख्यं दैववित्तसमन्वितः” ॥ On which Ānandagiri says:—“अधिकारिणे विद्यां वक्तुं गार्ग्यश्चेदुपचक्रमे तर्हि योग्यं ब्राह्मणं हित्वा किमिति राजानमुपेत्य ब्रवीति । तत्राह नष्टेति । यथाहुर्युक्तः संयोगोऽधिकारार्थेन हेतुना नष्टाश्वदग्धरथवदिति” ॥

Rāmīrtha, too, quotes the maxim in his comment on the Vedāntasāra (page 93, line 3):—“नष्टाश्वदग्धरथन्यायेन ‘कर्मणा पितृलोक ’ इति श्रुतिरूपपद्यते”, of which the following translation is found in The Pandit for May 1872:—“The Vedic text ‘The world of progenitors is attained by works,’ can be explained according to the analogy of two men, of whom the horses of the one are lost and the chariot of the other burnt [for the horses of the latter may be yoked to the car of the former, and they may travel together; and in like manner, constant and occasional works, though no special result has been recorded of them, may supply a cause for the attainment of the world of the progenitors, which requires some special works as a condition].” See also Tantravārtika, pp. 15, 709, 832, and Bhāmati, page 81.

नहि कठोरकण्ठीरवस्य कुरङ्गशावः प्रतिभटो भवति ॥

A young fawn cannot stand up against a full-grown lion.

This is found in the Akshapâda chapter of Sarvadars'ana-sangraha (page 136 of Jivânanda's, and 119 of Bib. Ind.):—
 “नैतत्परीक्षाक्षममीक्ष्यते नहि कठोरकण्ठीरवस्य कुरङ्गशावः प्रतिभटो भवति”, which Prof. Cowell renders, “This pretended inference will no more stand examination than the young fawn can stand the attack of the full-grown lion.” Compare “नाल्पीयसा महतोऽभिभवः संभवति” ॥ of S'âlikâ, page 94, and see the nyâya “नहि भवति तरक्षुः &c.” in Second Handful.

नहि खदिरगोचरे परशौ पलाशे द्वैधीभावो भवति ॥

The Palûs'a tree is not cleft when the axe is applied to the Khadira tree. The saying is used to indicate that two objects are essentially distinct. I have met with it in three of Vâcas-patimis'ra's works.

It occurs in Bhâmati 2. 2. 28 (page 438) in the following connection. “स्वरूपं विज्ञानस्यासत्याकारयुक्तं प्रमेयम् । प्रमेयप्रकाशनं प्रमाणफलं, तत्प्रकाशनशक्तिः प्रमाणम् । बाह्यवादिनोरपि वैभाषिकसौत्रान्तिकयोः काल्पनिक एव प्रमाणफलव्यवहारोऽभिमत इत्याह ‘सत्यपि बाह्येऽर्थ’ इति । भिन्नाधिकरणत्वे हि प्रमाणफलयोस्तद्भावो न स्यात् । नहि खदिरगोचरे परशौ पलाशे द्वैधीभावो भवति । तस्मादनयोरैकाधिकरण्यं वक्तव्यम्” ॥

Then in Yogabhâṣyaṭīkā i. 7 we read :—ननु पुरुषवर्ती बोधः कथं चित्तगताया वृत्तेः फलम् । नहि खदिरगोचरव्यापारेण परशुना पलाशे छिदा क्रियत इति” ॥

And very similarly in Nyâyavârtikatâtparyatīkā, page 67:—
 “अथ प्रमाणफलयोर्भिन्नविषयत्वेन विप्रतिपत्त्या प्रमाणफलभावायोगात् । नहि पनसविषयेण परशुना खदिरे द्वैधीभावो भवति” ॥ But he is not the only writer who makes use of it, for in Advaitabrahmasiddhi, page 93, we read:—“तयोर्भिन्नाधिकरणवृत्तित्वे खदिरगोचरे परशौ पालाशे द्वैधीभावो भवेत्” ॥ For earlier references to this nyâya, see the Superaddenda to the Third Handful.

न हि वरविघाताय कन्योद्धाहः ॥

The bride is not married for the destruction of the bridegroom. This is found in Brahmasûtrabhâshya 4. 1. 2, and in the Pûrnâprajna chapter of Sarvadars'anasamgraha (page 63 of Bib. Ind., and 75 of Jivananda's edn.). It occurs also in Jivanmuktiviveka, page 101 (line 4 from bottom). In the Vâchhaspatyam and in the Laukikanyâyasamgraha, the maxim is given in the positive form, viz. "वरघाताय कन्यावरणम्" with the other as a possible variant. Târânâtha explains it thus:—"विषकन्यायां वृतायां यत्र वरस्य घातः संभाव्यते तत्र तां नोद्धेदेवं विवक्षायामस्य प्रवृत्तिः । तथा चानिष्टान्तरपातादिसंभावनायामभीष्टहेतुरपि वस्तु न वरणीयमित्येवं तत्रायतात्पर्यम् । अयमेव न्यायः क्वचिन्न हि वरघाताय कन्यामुद्धाहयतीति न्यायतया पृथक्ते" ॥ We have a reference to "poison-damsels" in Kothâsaritsâgara xix. 82, which reads thus:—"विदधे विषकन्याश्च सैन्ये पण्यविलासिनीः । प्राहिणोऽपुरुषांश्चैव निशासु च्छन्नातिनः" ॥ In a foot-note to his translation of the passage, Mr. Tawney says, "One of these poison-damsels is represented as having been employed against Chandragupta in the Mudrâ-Râkshasa. Compare the xith tale in the Gesta Romanorum, where an Indian queen sends one to Alexander the Great. Aristotle frustrates the stratagem."

पङ्कप्रक्षालनन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the washing off of mud. It is evidently deduced from Pañchatantra ii. 157, a verse intended to strengthen an argument against the possession of riches under any circumstances, and which reads thus:—"धर्मार्थं यस्य वित्तेहा तस्यापि न शुभावहा । प्रक्षालनाद्धि पङ्कस्य दूरादस्पर्शनं वरम्" ॥ "If a man desires wealth for charitable purposes, even to him it will bring no good; for, better than the washing off of mud is the keeping away from it altogether." The nyâya is therefore the equivalent of our "Prevention is better than cure." In his bhâshya on Brahmasûtra 3. 2. 22. S'ankara twice quotes the second line of the above couplet; and, in commenting thereon, Ânandagiri uses the maxim three times. It is again applied twice by him on Brahmasūtrabhāṣya 4. 1. 16. as follows:—"अग्निहोत्रादीनामपि पुण्यान्तरवद्विनाशयत्वात्पङ्कक्षालनन्यायापातादारुरुक्षुणापि तानि नानुष्ठेयानि"; "धीनाश्यानामपि कर्मणामनुष्ठानस्य विद्योत्पत्त्यर्थतया पङ्कप्रक्षालनन्यायानवकाशात्पूर्वं ज्ञानादनुष्ठेयान्यग्निहोत्रादीनीति सिद्धान्तप्रतिज्ञां विवृणोति." See also Bhāmatī and Bhāṣyaratnaprabhā on the same, and Vivaraṇaprameyasangraha, page 97, line 14.

पङ्ग्वन्धन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the lame man and the blind man. The conception is that of a lame man mounted on the shoulders of one who is blind, so that the former is furnished with the power of locomotion and the latter with sight. It is intended to illustrate mutual dependence for mutual advantage, as exemplified in Sāṅkhyakārikā 21, the text of which, with Colebrooke's translation, is as follows:—"पुरुषस्य दर्शनार्थं कैवल्यार्थं तथा प्रधानस्य । पङ्ग्वन्धवदुभयोरपि संयोगस्तत्कृतः सर्गः" ॥ "For the soul's contemplation of Nature, and for its abstraction, the union of both takes place, as of the halt and blind. By that union a creation is framed." Vāchaspati Miśra ignores the illustration, but Paṇḍit Tārānātha has a helpful note on it. He says:—"उक्तार्थे दृष्टान्तः पङ्ग्वन्धवदिति । यथा गतिशक्तिरहितस्य पङ्गोर्गतिसाधनाय गतिमतोऽन्धस्यापेक्षा, दृष्टिशक्तिरहितस्य चान्धस्य गतिशक्तिसत्त्वेऽपि स्वाभीष्टदेशगमनं दर्शकमन्तरेण न संभवति तथा च यथा स्वस्वकार्याय तयोरन्योन्यापेक्षा तथा क्रियारहितस्य पुरुषस्य सक्रियप्रधानस्यापेक्षा दृष्टिशक्तिरहितस्य च प्रधानस्य दृष्टिशक्तियुक्तपुरुषस्यापेक्षेत्यत उभाभ्यामन्योन्यमपेक्ष्य स्वस्वकार्यं निष्पाद्यत इत्यर्थः" ॥ The above kārikā is quoted on the last page of the Sāṅkhya section of Sarvadarsāṇasangraha, and is preceded by a very clear explanation of the maxim.

पञ्जरचालनन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the moving of the bird-cage. An illustration of the power of united effort. In a discussion on prāṇa, under Vedāntasūtra 2. 4. 9, Śaṅkara introduces this maxim and explains it thus:—"ननु पञ्जरचालनन्यायेनैतद्विप्यति । यथैकपञ्जरवर्तिन एकादशपक्षिणः प्रत्येकं प्रतिनियतव्यापाराः सन्तः संभूयैकं पञ्जरं चालयन्ति । एवमेकशरीरवर्तिन एकादशप्राणाः प्रत्येकं प्रतिनियतवृत्तयः सन्तः संभूयैकां प्राणाख्यां वृत्तिं प्रतिलप्स्यन्त इति" ॥ Dr. Thibaut translates the passage as follows:—"But, an objection may be raised, the thing may take place in the manner of the moving [of the?] bird-cage. Just as eleven birds shut up in one cage, may, although each makes a separate effort, move the cage by the combination of their efforts, so the eleven prāṇas which abide in one body may, although each has its own special function, by the combination of these functions, produce one common function called prāṇa."

पाटञ्चरलुण्ठिते वेश्मनि यामिकजागरणम् ॥

The vigilance of the watchman after the house has been plundered by thieves. Equivalent to our proverb "Shutting the stable door after the horse is gone." It occurs in Khaṇḍa-nakhaṇḍakhādya, page 45:—"प्रयोजनानुपयुक्ते काले तस्य स्वरूपतो- स्वस्थानं पाटञ्चरलुण्ठिते वेश्मनि यामिकजागरणवृत्तान्तमनुहरति" ॥

पिण्याक्याचनार्थं गतस्य खारिकातैलदातृत्वाभ्युपगमः ॥

He went to crave the leavings of the oil-seed, and had instead to agree to give 16 measures of oil. Used of one completely worsted in argument. I render पिण्याक in accordance with its meaning in Pañchatantra iii. 99 ("श्रेयस्तैलं च पिण्याकात्"). The maxim is found in the Pūrṇaprajña section of the Sarva-dars'anasangraha (page 63 of Bib. Ind., and 75 of Jivānanda):—"सोऽयं पिण्याक्याचनार्थं गतस्य खारिकातैलदातृत्वाभ्युपगम इव", which Prof. Gough renders:—"And thus it must be allowed that, in raising the objection, you have begged for a little oil-cake, and have had to give us gallons of oil."

पिष्टपेषणन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the grinding of that which is already ground. Fruitless reiteration, unproductive repetition. The oldest instance, known to me, of the employment of the nyāya, is by S'abara on Jaimini 9. 2. 3:—"न हि स्निग्धस्य स्नेहनं शक्यं कर्तुं पिष्टस्य वा पेपणम्". It occurs again in 12. 2. 16, and in Tantravārtika, pp. 54 and 477. We find it likewise in S'ankara's bhāṣya on Kena-Upanishad 32:—"यदि तावच्छ्रुतस्यार्थस्य प्रश्नः कृतस्ततः पिष्टपेपणवत्पुनरुक्तोऽनर्थकः प्रश्नः स्यात्" ॥, and in Sudars'anārya's comment on Āpastamba-Grihyasūtra xiv. 9 ("पुंसवनं व्यक्ते गर्भे तिप्येण"), where he says "इदमपि सीमन्तवत्प्रथम एव न तु प्रतिगर्भे पिष्टपेपणन्यायात्" ॥ Compare तुपकण्डनन्याय in Second Handful.

प्रदीपे प्रदीपं प्रज्वालय तमोनाशाय यतमानः ॥

Trying to remove the dimness of a lamp by lighting another. Used of foolishly superfluous and misdirected effort. It occurs in Khaṇḍanakhaṇḍakhāḍya, page 294:—"लघोरुपायात्साध्यसिद्धौ भवन्त्यां गुरावुपाये प्रवर्तमानस्य तवैवेदं दोषोद्भावनं प्रदीपे प्रदीपं प्रज्वालय तमोनाशाय यतमानस्येव पुंसः" ॥ In a footnote, the editor says:—"प्रदीपं प्रज्वालय प्रदीपे तमोनाशाय यतमानस्य पुंस इवेत्यन्वयः."

In Upades'asūhasri xvii. 41 (page 215), we read:—"न हि दीपान्तरापेक्षा यद्दीपप्रकाशने । बोधस्यात्मस्वरूपत्वात् बोधान्यस्तथेप्यते"; and, in Sures'vara's Bṛihadāraṇyakavārtika 4. 3. 501:—"ननु दीपः स्वमात्मानं स्वात्मनैवावभासयन् । दृष्टो दीपप्रकाशार्थं न हि दीपान्तराहतिः" ॥ See also Nyāyamanjarī, page 625, on Nyāyasūtra 5. 1. 10.

प्रधानमल्लनिबर्हणन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the destruction of the chief antagonist. The principle that when the most formidable enemy has been defeated, the less formidable are already virtually overcome. In the bhāṣya on Vedāntasūtra 1. 4. 28 ("एतेन सर्वे व्याख्याता व्याख्याताः") we read:—"अतः प्रधानमल्लनिबर्हणन्यायेनातिदिशति । एतेन प्रधानकारणवादप्रतिषेधन्यायकलापेन सर्वेऽण्वादिकारणवादा अपि प्रतिषिद्धतया व्याख्याता वेदितव्याः" ॥ Here, there is undoubtedly a play on the word प्रधान, the Sāṅkhya theory of the Pradhāna being the chief antagonist met and overcome in the foregoing Sūtras and bhâshya. The same expression appears again in the bhâshya on Sûtra 2. 1. 12, and the maxim is found, too, in the Râmânûja chapter of Sarvadars'anasangraha (page 54 of Jivânanda's edition, and p. 45 of Bib. Ind. edition).

बीजाङ्कुरन्यायः ॥

The maxim of an eternal series of seed and shoot. As the seed produces the shoot, so the latter in turn reproduces the former. Each therefore is a cause and an effect. The maxim is met with very frequently in the literature. We find it in Brahmasûtrabhâshya 2. 1. 36 (on the eternity of the world) as follows:—"न च कर्मान्तरेण शरीरं संभवति । न च शरीरमन्तरेण कर्म संभवतीतीतरेतराश्रयत्वप्रसङ्गः । अनादित्वे तु बीजाङ्कुरन्यायेनोपपत्तेर्न कश्चिदोपो भवति", which is rendered thus by Dr. Thibaut:—"Without merit and demerit no body can enter into existence, and again, without a body merit and demerit cannot be formed ; so that—on the doctrine of the world having a beginning—we are led into a logical see-saw. The opposite doctrine, on the other hand, explains all matters in a manner analogous to the case of the seed and sprout, so that no difficulty remains." It occurs again at the end of the bhâshya on 3. 2. 9. Also in the Ârîhata section of Sarvadars'anasangraha (page 31 of Bib. Ind., and 37 of Jivânanda), in Râmâtîrtha's commentary on Vedântasâra (page 110), and in Pancapâdikâ, page 12, line 12.

ब्राह्मणपरिव्राजकन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the Brâhmanas and the mendicants. In such a sentence as ब्राह्मणा भोजयितव्याः परिव्राजकाश्च the separate mention of the latter, who are really included in the former term, merely emphasizes their position as a special part of the general body. It is thus the exact parallel of the गोबलीवर्दन्याय and of the ब्राह्मणवसिष्ठन्याय. It is used by S'ankara three times in his exposition of the Vedântasûtras, namely under 1. 4. 16, 2. 3. 15, and 3. 1. 11 ; but I forbear to quote his words, for without a lengthy portion of context they would be unintelligible. It appears also in Tantravârtika, pages 423, 590.

ब्राह्मणवसिष्ठन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the Brâhman and Vasishtha. This is of the same type as ब्राह्मणपरिव्राजकन्याय, which see. Satyavrata gives as a reference “हलन्त्यं-सूत्रभाष्यं,” i. e. Patanjali on Pânini 1. 3. 3. But the reference is a pure delusion; and I think I may safely say that the maxim is not to be found in any part of the Mahâbhâshya. It would not be unreasonable, however, to infer that the author of the Padamanjarî had this nyâya in view when he penned the following:—वैदिकानां लौकिकत्वेऽपि प्राधान्यव्यापनार्थं पृथग्ग्रहणं यथा ब्राह्मणा आगता वसिष्ठोऽप्यागत इति” ॥ (The Pandit, vol. x, page 282). Compare तत्त्वकौण्डिन्यन्याय in Second Handful.

ब्राह्मणश्रमणन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the Brâhman-ascetic. The श्रमण is a Buddhist ascetic, and therefore not a Brâhman,—but the expression ब्राह्मणश्रमण implies that though now a Buddhist he was formerly a Brâhman. The maxim is used by the authors of the Kâvyâ-prakâśa (page 68) and the Sâhityadarpana (article 257) in exactly the same connexion. After giving an example of ‘suggested meaning’ in the form of ‘semblance of contradiction’ (विरोधाभास), the author of the latter work says:—“अत्रामित इत्यादावपिशब्दाभावाद्विरोधाभासो व्यङ्ग्यः । व्यङ्ग्यस्यालंकार्यत्वेऽपि ब्राह्मण-श्रमणन्यायादलंकारत्वमुपचर्यते”, which Mr. Pramadâdâsa Mitra renders thus:—“Here, from the absence of the particle अपि after the words अमित &c., the semblance of the ornament named ‘contradiction’ is suggested. The suggested meaning, though strictly what is ornamented, is figuratively spoken of here as the ornament, with reference to its being an ornament in another condition [i. e. when it is expressed, not suggested], just as we use the word Brâhman-mendicant, which, though it etymologically means an absurdity, viz. a mendicant, or one not a Brâhman, who is a Brahman, tropically signifies one who was a Brâhman."

भक्षितेऽपि लशुने न शान्तो व्याधिः ॥

Although the garlic has been eaten the disease is not cured. This proverb is applied as follows by Nṛsiṃhasarasvatî in his comment on the opening verse of the Vedântasîre:—"ननु भक्षितेऽपि लशुने न शान्तो व्याधिरिति न्यायेन प्रपञ्चस्याधिष्ठानव्यतिरिक्त-तया प्रतीयमानत्वात्कथमद्वैतसिद्धिरित्याशङ्कां तृणीकुर्वन्नाह अखण्डमिति" ॥ It is found also in Vedântakalpataruparimala, page 37.

भिक्षुपादप्रसारणन्यायः ॥

The maxim of a beggar's obtaining a firm footing [in a patron's house]. Perhaps approaching our "Give him an inch and he will take an ell." Târânâtha explains it thus:—"यथा कश्चिद्भिक्षुर्यथेष्टभोजनाच्छादनवासगृहादिलाभार्थं कस्यचिद्धनिनो गृहे प्रविश्य युगपत्सर्वाभीष्टालाभं मन्यमानः प्रथमं धनिगृहे मे पादप्रसारणमस्तु पश्चादनेन परिचयमुत्पाद्य सर्वमभीष्टं संपादयिष्यामीति धिया स्वल्पामपि भिक्षां बहुमन्यमानः पश्चात्क्रमेण स्वाभीष्टं संपादयत्येवं यत्र विवक्षा तत्रास्य प्रवृत्तिः" ॥

It occurs in the Buddha chapter of Sarvadars'anasangraha (page 14 of Bib. Ind. edn.) as follows:—"माध्यमिकास्तावदुत्तमप्रज्ञा इत्थमचीकथन्भििक्षुपादप्रसारणन्यायेन क्षणभङ्गाद्यभिधानमुखेन स्थायित्वानुकूलवेदनीयत्वानुगतसर्वसत्यत्वभ्रमव्यावर्तनेन सर्वशून्यतायामेव पर्यवसानम्" ॥ Here is Prof. Gough's rendering:—"The Mādhyamikas, excellently wise, explain as follows, namely that the doctrine of Buddha terminates in that of a total void (universal baselessness or nihilism) by a slow progression like the intrusive steps of a mendicant, through the position of a momentary flux, and through the (gradual) negation of the illusory assurances of pleasurable sensibility, of universality, and of reality."

I have met with one other example only, namely in Venkaṭanâtha's Tattvamuktâkalâpa, page 254:—"अस्त्वेवमिति चेन्न भिक्षु- पादप्रसारणन्यायेन निरीश्वरवादावतारादतः क्रोधावश्यम्भावादीश्वरस्यापि दुःखावश्यम्भावः” ॥ The subject under discussion here is आगमिकेश्वरसिद्धि. For the cognate expression पादप्रसारिका see the Second Handful.

मणिमन्त्रादिन्यायः ॥

The nyâya of a gem or charm &c. [as an obstructor or exciter of fire &c., by its presence or absence]. This obscure nyâya is not in Raghunâthavarma's collection, but is defined as follows in the Vācaspatyaṃ, page 4166 :—“मणिमन्त्रादीनां बहेर्दाहं प्रति यथा स्वातन्त्र्येण प्रतिबन्धकत्वं लोकसिद्धं न च तत्र युक्त्यपेक्षा एवं कामिनीजिज्ञासाया अपि ज्ञानमात्रं प्रति प्रतिबन्धकत्वमित्येवं यत्र पृथक् प्रतिबन्धकत्वं तत्रास्य प्रवृत्तिः” ॥

I am much indebted to Mr. Arthur Venis for the following note elucidating the nyâya :—“In their analysis of the notion of cause and effect many Indian writers distinguish between those cases in which the processes that intervene (avāntara-vyāpāra) between the cause and its final product (kārya) are known by ordinary experience (lokasiddha), and those other cases in which the intermediate stages are not thus known. Of the latter cases, while we know as a fact (say these writers) that, for example, a maṇi or a mantra will produce a certain effect or prevent it from coming into existence, we are quite unable to explain the rationale of the process in terms of ordinary experience. All that can be said in such cases is that the maṇi or the mantra has the power (śakti) to produce this or hinder that result. This postulate of a power transcending ordinary experience is the मणिमन्त्रादिन्याय, and its proper application (pravṛtti) is to the class of causes thus roughly described. If I remember rightly, another, and to us westerners a more interesting, example of this nyâya is the double fact of attention to something and attention away from something else. The lover, intent on discovering his mistress (kāminī-jijñāsa), is psychologically dead to all that does not concern her. But how should his attention to her cause attention away from all the world beside? Here, says the Indian psychologist, analysis of the how can proceed no further. The postulate of the मणिमन्त्र must be applied here; or, in other words, we can only say that attention to a thing has the power to cause (śakti) attention away from something else." This question is discussed in Kuṣumāñjali i. 10, and Prof. Cowell's translation of the kārikā and Haridasa's comment will be found helpful. I have met with the nyāya in the Saṅkṣ'epa-s'ārīraka iii. 87, 88, 91; in Tattvamuktākalāpa iv. 103, and better still, in v. 99; and in Vidvanmaṇḍana, page 59.

मण्डूकपुतिन्यायः ॥

The maxim of a frog's leap. Used by grammarians and others to express the passing from one rule to another over intervening ones. I noted it in the following portions of the Mahābhāṣya:—1. 1. 3 (vārt. 2); 5. 2. 4 (2); 6. 1. 17 and 3. 49; and 7. 2. 117. I have met with it also in Jayaratha's commentary on Alankārasarvasva 20 ("विषयस्यापह्नवेऽपह्नुतिः"), where he says:—
 "केचन मण्डूकपुतिन्यायेनानुवर्तनस्यानुचितत्वाद्भ्रान्तिमदनन्तरमपह्नुतिर्ग्रन्थकृता लक्षिता उल्लेखश्चातिशयोक्त्यनन्तरमिति ग्रन्थं विपर्ययसितवन्तः । न चैतत्" ॥
 See, too, Bhāmati 1. 3. 39, and Ballantyne's Aphorisms of the Nyāya, ii. 80.

मध्यदीपिकान्यायः ॥

The maxim of the central lamp. The idea is of a lamp in a central position shedding its light on all sides. It occurs in the Muṇḍaka-bhāṣya 1. 1. 3 (शौनको ह वै महाशालोऽङ्गिरसं विधिवदुपसङ्गः पप्रच्छ):—
 "शौनकाङ्गिरसोः संबन्धादर्वाग्विधिवद्विशेषणादुपसदनविधेः पूर्वपामनियम इति गम्यते । मर्यादाकरणार्थं मध्यदीपिकान्यायार्थं वा विशेषणम्" ॥
 Also in Rāmātīrtha on Vedāntasāra (page 129):—
 "मध्यप्रदीप-न्यायेनोत्तरत्रापि जाग्रद्वासनेत्यत्र कोशत्रयपदं संबध्यते", which is thus rendered by Prof. Gough (in the Pandit for Feb. 1873, p. 212):—

 “The term triad of sheaths has a double connection [with both the preceding and following clauses], after the manner of a lamp placed in the middle of a door [and throwing light both inwards and outwards.]” The following from Nyāyamanjarī, page 212, further illustrates the nyāya :—“गृहे दधिघटीं द्रष्टुमानीतो गृहमेधिना । अपूपानपि तद्देशान्प्रकाशयति दीपकः” ॥ Akin to this is मध्यमणिन्याय, which is explained in the Pandit for Dec. 1867 as referring to the central ruby of a nose-ring which casts a lustre on the pearl on each side of it.

मानाधीना मेयसिद्धिः ॥

To know the thing to be measured you must know the measure. This is quoted in the opening part of the Akshapāda section of Sarvadars'anasangraha:—“मानाधीना मेयसिद्धिरिति न्यायेन प्रमाणस्य प्रथममुद्देशे तदनुसारेण लक्षणस्य कथनीयतया प्रथमोद्दिष्टस्य प्रमाणस्य प्रथमं लक्षणं कथ्यते” ॥ Prof. Cowell's translation is as follows:—“In accordance with the principle that ‘to know the thing to be measured you must first know the measure,’ proof (pramāṇa) is first enunciated, and as this must be done by defining it, we have first a definition of proof.” We find it too, in Tattvapradīpikā (or Citsukhī) ii. 18, as follows: “मानाधीना मेयसिद्धिर्मानसिद्धिश्च लक्षणात् । तच्चाध्यक्षादिमानेषु गीर्वाणैरपि दुर्भणम्” ॥ Compare also the following from Saṅkshēpas'drīraṇa* (i. 487):—“मानेन मेयावगतिश्च युक्ता धर्मस्य जाड्याद्विधिनिष्ठकाण्डे । मेयेन मानावगतिस्तु युक्ता वेदान्तवाक्येष्वजडं हि मेयम्” ॥ See, too, Vivaraṇaprameyasangraha, page 86, and Sāṅkhyakārikā 4 (“प्रमेयसिद्धिः प्रमाणाद्धि”).

मुञ्जादिषीकोद्धरणन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the extraction of the interior spike of the

* Its author, Sarvajñātmanamunt, was a pupil of Sureś'varācārya. See Mr. K. B. Pāṇikar's valuable paper Bhartṛihara and Kumārila (1892), page 24.

Munja grass. The following verse from the Pañcadaśī (i. 42), with an extract from Rāmakṛishṇa's comment thereon will fully explain the meaning and application of the saying:—
 “यथा मुञ्जादिषीकैवमात्मा युक्त्या समुद्धतः । शरीरत्रितयाद्धीरैः परं ब्रह्मैव जायते” ॥ “यथा येन प्रकारेण मुञ्जादेतन्नामकात्तृणविशेषादिषीका गर्भस्थं कोमलं तृणं युक्त्या बहिरावरकत्वेन स्थितानां स्थूलपत्राणां विभजनलक्षणेनोपायेन समुद्भियत एवमात्मापि...शरीरत्रितयात्...धीरैः...समुद्धतः पृथक् कृतश्चेत्स परं ब्रह्मैव जायते” ॥ The illustration is a very ancient one, since it is employed in S'atapatha Brāhmaṇa 4. 3. 3. 16, and in Kaṭha Upaniṣad vi. 17. The latter instance is as follows:—
 “तं स्वाच्छरीरात्प्रवृद्धेन्मुञ्जादिवेषीकां धैर्येण.” For the former, see this nyāya in the Superaddenda to Third Handful. It is found also in Bṛihadâraṇyakavârtika 4. 4. 1277.

याचितकमण्डनन्यायः ॥

The maxim of borrowed ornaments. Appearing in borrowed plumes. It is well illustrated by Naiṣadhacarita vii. 56:—
 “अस्या मुखश्रीप्रतिबिम्बमेव जलाच्च तातान्मुकुराच्च मित्रात् । अभ्यर्च्य धत्तः खलु पद्मचन्द्रौ विभूषणं याचितकं कदाचित्” ॥ On which Mallinātha comments thus:—“याचितकं यात्रानिर्वृत्तम् । यात्रयाप्तं याचितकमित्यमरः । भूपमित्ययाचिताभ्यां कक्कनाविति कन्प्रत्ययः (Pāṇ. 4. 4. 21) । विभूषणं कदाचिदभ्यर्च्य धत्तो दधाते खलु । एतदीयमेव सुहृद्वधमनयोऽयाचितं मण्डनं न स्वाभाविकमित्युत्प्रेक्षा” . In the above form the nyāya is found in Tārṅgikarakṣā, page 46:—“तेनायथार्थस्यापि यथार्थानुभवजनितत्वेन यथार्थत्वव्यपदेश इति याचितकमण्डनकमनीयमेव स्मृतेर्याथार्थ्यम्.” As याचित-मण्डन I have met with it in Khaṇḍanoddhāra, page 62, and in Kāvya-pradīpikā of Vaidyanātha Tatsat, page 173.

लोष्टप्रस्तारन्यायः ॥

This occurs in Abhinavagupta's comment on Dhvanyāloka iii. 16 (page 159) in the following sentence:—“तेन लोष्टप्रस्तारन्यायेनानन्तवैचित्र्यमुक्तम्,” and in the first edition I said that it could only mean the maxim of an expanse of clods of earth [as in a roughly ploughed field]. Regarding however प्रस्तार as a mislection for प्रस्तर it would mean the maxim of a stone and a clod of earth, and would be synonymous with अश्मलोष्टन्याय of the dictionaries. Mr. M. R. Telang (of the Bombay High Court) has however kindly suggested the following, with which I was quite unfamiliar. He says :—“ लोष्ट means a pebble and प्रस्तार a table showing the varieties of metres &c. formed by different arrangements of the short and long syllables in prosody, music &c. The Indians make use of this process to find out the number of varieties of any number of given things. So the meaning of the nyâya can be better explained by the expression the maxim of the process of permutations and combinations.

It may be asked what लोष्ट (a pebble) has to do with permutations and combinations. In finding out the number of varieties of any number of given things, a pebble is used for marking certain figures according to the Indian process with the help of प्रस्तार, खण्डमेरु, नष्टोद्दिष्ट &c. These processes are well known to any one conversant with books on Indian music or prosody. The following references to books on the subject will support my statement. Vide संगीतरत्नाकर Chap. i verses 61 to 69 (pages 57-60); संगीतदर्पण Chap. i ver. 144 to 154.”

वरं सांशयिकान्निष्कादसांशयिकः कार्षापणः ॥

Better is a certain kârshâpana than an uncertain nishka. This and the proverb immediately following are found in the second chapter of Vâtsyâyana's Kâmasûtra (page 19), and are the equivalents of our saying “A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.”

वरमद्य कपोतः श्वो मयूरात् ॥

Better is a pigeon to-day than a peacock tomorrow. See above.

विपुलकदलीफललिप्सया जिह्वाच्छेदनम् ॥

Cutting off the tongue while trying to get a fine plantain. This is found in the Pūrṇaprajña section of Sarvadarśana-sangraha (page 64 of Bib. Ind., and 75 of Jivānanda's edn.) as follows:—“एवं च परमेश्वराभेदतृष्णया विष्णोर्गुणोत्कर्षस्य मृगतृष्णिकासम-त्वाभिधानं विपुलकदलीफललिप्सया जिह्वाच्छेदनमनुहरत्येतादशविष्णुविद्वेषणा-दन्धतमसप्रवेशप्रसङ्गात्” ॥ Prof. Gough renders it thus:—“Thus the statement of those (Advaita-vādins) in their thirst to be one with the Supreme Lord, that the supreme excellence of Viṣṇu is like a mirage, is as if they were to cut off their tongues in trying to get a fine plantain, since it results that through offending this supreme Viṣṇu they must enter into the hell of blind darkness.”

विषकृमिन्यायः ॥

The maxim of worms bred in poison (or, in manure). Āpte's Dictionary alone gives us this nyāya which he describes as follows:—“It is used to denote a state of things which though fatal to others, is not so to those who, being bred in it, are inured or naturalized to it.” In this case it might represent our “What is one man's food is another man's poison.” Āpte gives no reference to a passage where the maxim is used, and I am indebted for one to that veritable ratnākara, Dr. Böhtlingk's Indische Sprüche (6164). It consists of a quotation from Vṛiddha-Cāṇakhya, a work which appears to exist in MS. only. It runs thus:—

विप्रास्मिन्नगरे महान्कथय कस्तालद्रुमाणां गणः

को दाता रजको ददाति वसनं प्रातर्गृहीत्वा निशि ।

को दक्षः परदारवित्तहरणे सर्वोऽपि दक्षो जनः

कस्माज्जीवसि हे सखे विषकृमिन्यायेन जीवाम्यहम् ॥

The Doctor renders the last line by “Wozu lebst du, o Freund? Ich lebe nach Art des Mistkäfers (d. i. Ich suche das Beste heraus).” If this is correct, the nyâya must be expressive of “living in clover,” or, amidst “marrow and fatness!”

विषवृक्षन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the poisonous tree. This appears to be based on the second half of Kumârasambhava ii. 55 (or Pañcatantra i. 245), which runs thus:—“विषवृक्षोऽपि संवर्धय स्वयं छेतुमसाम्प्रतम्.” “It would be improper to cut down even a poisonous tree, after cultivating it oneself.” This is used as a maxim by the author of Khaṇḍanakhaṇḍakhāḍya (page 727) in the following sentence:—“एते सर्वे तर्काः...अस्माभिरेव तर्कपदव्यामभिपिक्तास्ततो न प्रवन्धेन निरस्यन्ते ‘विषवृक्षोऽपि संवर्धय स्वयं छेतुमसाम्प्रतमिति’ ” ॥ There is another capital instance of it in Upamiti-bhavaraprapancā Kathā, page 715:—“हा हा मयेदं नो चारु कृतं यत्सुतभर्त्सनम् । विषवृक्षोऽपि संवर्धय स्वयं छेतुमसाम्प्रतम् ” ॥

वीचीतरङ्गन्यायः ॥

The maxim of wave-undulation. This is used by the author of the Bhâshâpariccheda (verses 165, 166) to account for the production of sound. He says—“सर्वः शब्दो न भवति श्रोत्रोत्पत्तिस्तु गृह्यते । वीचीतरङ्गन्यायेन तदुत्पत्तिस्तु कीर्तिता । कदम्बकोरकन्यायादुत्पत्तिः कस्यचिन्मते ” ॥ Almost the same words are used by Vedântin Mahâdeva (latter part of 17th century) in his comment on Sâṅkhyasûtra V. 103:— किंतु शब्द एव वीचीतरङ्गन्यायेन कदम्बमुकुलन्यायेन वा श्रोत्रदेशं गतः श्रोत्रेण गृह्यते ”. “But sound comes to the seat of hearing in the same manner as the undulating waves [of water], or as the anthers of a [globulous] Kadamba-flower and is thus apprehended by the ear.” The translation, is Dr. R. Garbe's.

वृद्धकुमारीवाक्यन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the request of the aged spinster. This is recorded in Mahābhāṣya 8. 2. 3 as follows:—"अथवा वृद्धकुमारीवाक्यवदिदं द्रष्टव्यम् । तद्यथा । वृद्धकुमारीन्द्रेणोक्ता वरं वृणीष्वेति सा वरमवृणीत पुत्रा मे बहुक्षीरघृतमोदनं कांस्यपात्र्यां भुञ्जीरन्निति । न च तावदस्याः पतिर्भवति कुतः पुत्राः कुतो गावः कुतो धान्यम् । तत्रानयैकेन वाक्येन पतिः पुत्रा गावो धान्यमिति सर्वं संगृहीतं भवति" ॥ This would be applied to a sentence having a variety of meanings. In Tantravārtika 2. 2. 2 (page 452) we meet with it as वृद्धकुमारीवरप्रार्थन; and in the Paṇḍit for December 1867 (page 156) we find exactly the same kind of thing under the heading वृद्धब्राह्मणवरन्यायः. This worthy was not only old but blind, and his request was "स्वपौत्रं राजसिंहासनस्थितमीक्षितुमिच्छामीति."

वृद्धिमिष्टवतो मूलमपि ते नष्टम् ॥

Wishing to grow, you have destroyed your root. This is Prof. Cowell's rendering of the saying as it appears in the Sarvadars'anasangraha (page 27 Bib. Ind., p. 33 Jivānanda):—"तथा च वृद्धिमिष्टवतो मूलमपि ते नष्टं स्यादिति महत्कष्टमापन्नम्" । In the Vācaspatyam, however, we have the literal and more usual meaning of the nyāya, namely "Whilst seeking to obtain interest, the creditor loses [that and] the capital too." "वृद्धिमिष्टवतो मूलमपि विनष्टमिति न्यायः । वृद्धिर्धनप्रयोगेऽधमर्णात्प्राप्यांशभेदलाभः । तामिष्टवत उत्तमर्णस्याधमर्णदौष्ट्याद्यथा मूलं नश्यत्येवं यत्राभीष्टान्तरसंपादनाय प्रयतमानस्य मूलं नश्यति तत्रास्य प्रवृत्तिः" ॥ See also Khaṇḍanakhaṇḍakhāḍya, p. 31; Pancadas'ī, vii. 81; Vedāntakalpataru, page 321; and Syādvādamanjarī, page 19. An amusing illustration of this saying is found in Kuvalayānanda, under the figure विषम. "इष्टार्थमुद्दिश्य किञ्चित्कर्मारब्धवतो न केवलमिष्टस्यानवाप्तिः किन्तु ततोऽनिष्टस्यापि प्रतिलंभश्चेत्तदपि विषमम् । यथा भक्ष्यप्रेप्सया सर्पपेटिकां दष्ट्वा प्रविष्टस्य मूषकस्य न केवलं भक्ष्यालाभः किन्तु स्वरूप-

हानिरपीति ” ॥ Raghunātha has two other maxims of the same kind, namely, “ पुत्रलिप्सया देवं भजन्त्या भर्तापि नष्टः”, and “ चर्म-तन्तौ महिषीं हन्ति.”

शरपुरुषीयन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the man and the arrow. Vardhamāna explains this, as follows, in his comment on Gaṇaratnamahodadhi iii. 196:—“ शरश्च क्षिप्तः प्राकाराच्च पुरुष उत्थितः स तेन हतः । तत्तुल्यं शरपुरुषीयम् ” ॥ An arrow is discharged from a bow, and at the same moment a man rises up from behind a wall and is killed by it. It illustrates, therefore, a purely accidental and unforeseen occurrence, and must be classed with the अजाकृपाणीय, खल्वाटविल्वीय, and others of a like nature.

शर्करोन्मज्जनीयन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the pebble and the [man's] emerging [from the water]. This, like that immediately preceding, is found in Vardhamāna's work, and on the same page. He explains it thus:—“ शर्करा च क्षिप्ता पुरुषस्य चोन्मज्जनं तत्तुल्यं शर्करोन्मज्जनीयम् ” ॥ At the moment that the pebble is thrown, a man who has been diving or swimming emerges from the water and is struck by it. This, too, therefore, belongs to the अजाकृपाणीय and काकतालीय category.

शिरश्छेदेऽपि शतं न ददाति विंशतिपञ्चकं तु प्रयच्छतीति शाकटिकन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the carter who would be beheaded rather than pay a hundred, but will at once give five score! It occurs in the Pûrnaprajna section of Sarvadars'anasangraha (page 71 of Bib. Ind. and page 83 of Jivânanda's) as follows:—

 “ननु प्रपञ्चस्य मिथ्यात्वमभ्युपेयते नासत्त्वमिति चेत्तदेतत्सोऽयं शिरश्छेदेऽपि शतं न ददाति विंशतिपञ्चकं तु प्रयच्छतीति शाकटिकवृत्तान्तमनुहरेन्मिथ्यात्वा- सत्त्वयोः पर्यायत्वादित्यलमितिप्रपञ्चेन” ॥ “If you say that you accept the falsity of the universe, but not its unreality, you are simply acting like the carter who would lose his head rather than pay a hundred pieces of money, but at once gives five score! For falsity and unreality are synonymous. But enough of prolixity.”

It is found also in Ātmatattvavivēka (page 31), from which Mādhava probably took it. In Tattvamuktākalāpa ii. 71 (page 244) it takes the form of “शतमदिसतः शतार्धद्वयदानम्”, and there is still another variety of it in Khandanoddhāra, page 74, namely “शिरश्छेदेऽपि काकर्णीं न ददाति पञ्चगण्डकांस्तु ददाति.” (Compare with this the following from Nyāyamanjari, page 432:—“अथो- च्यते न प्रत्यक्ष आत्मा किंत्वपरोक्ष इति नेदमर्थान्तरवचनं शिशव एव प्रतार्यन्ते न ग्रामाणिकाः” ॥

शीर्षे सर्पो देशान्तरे वैद्यः ॥

A snake in the head, and the doctor in another country.
 This occurs, in Prākṛit, in Karpûramanjarî iv. (page 100).
 It is found in somewhat similar form in Mudrârākshasa i. 21, also in Prākṛit. The chhāyā is as follows. “उपरि घनं घनरटितं दूरे दयिता किमेतदापतितम् । हिमवति दिव्यौषधयः शीर्षे सर्पः समाविष्टः” ॥

शुकनलिकान्यायः ॥

The maxim of the parrot and the Nalikā-tree. Illustrative of causeless fear. In Udyoga-Parva xvi. 42 we read “काकुदीकं शुकं नाकमक्षिसंतर्जनं तथा” । on which the commentator Nilakanṭha says :— “काकुदीकमित्यादयोऽष्टावस्त्रजातयः ।...येन शुकन-लिकान्यायेन अभयेऽपि भयदर्शिनो हयरथादिपादेषु गाढं क्षिप्यन्ति तच्छुक-

मोहनं नाम ” ॥ I have met with it also in a MS. (No. 233 of 1882-83 in Deccan College, Poona) of Nârâyana's commentary on Gopâlottaratâpanîya-Upanishad 8 (corresponding with 21 and 22 of Bib. Ind. edition), where, expounding the words “ यो हि वै कामेन कामान्कामयते &c.,” he says:— “ वास्तवं कर्तुंभोक्तृत्वं बन्धमोक्षादिकमात्मनो नास्ति किंतु स्वकामपरिकल्पितं शुकनलिकान्यायेन ” ॥

शृङ्गग्राहिकान्यायः ॥

The maxim of seizing oxen by their horns. That is, by way of specification, and not in the sense of our proverb ‘Taking the bull by the horns.’ This is very clearly put in Râmakrishna's commentary on S'ankarânanda's Âtmapurâna iv. 561-2. The text runs thus:—“शास्त्रं चात्र प्रवृत्तं सत्प्रवृत्तिं कुरुते द्विधा । विधानेन निषेधेन लोकदृष्टिसमाश्रयात् ॥ ५६१ ॥ शृङ्गग्राहिकया यदि बोधयेत्तद्विधायकम् । यथा लोके करे तेऽस्ति फलमित्यादिभाषणम् ॥ ५६२ ॥”

On the latter verse, Râmakrishna says:—“तत्र विधायकशास्त्रस्य लक्षणं लौकिकमुदाहरणं चाह शृङ्गेति । शृङ्गस्य ग्रहणं यस्यां क्रियायां सा शृङ्गग्राहिका । संज्ञायामिति ण्वुल् । (Pân. 3. 3. 108-9) । यथा गोव्रजे का मदीया गौरिति गोपः पृष्टः शृङ्गं गृहीत्वा गां प्रदर्शयेत्तथाबोधकं शास्त्रं विधायकमुच्यते ” ॥ So too, in Sures'vara's vârtika on Bṛihadâraṇyakopani-shadbhâṣya 1. 4. 866:—“शृङ्गग्राहिकया श्रुत्या ब्रह्मतापोदिता स्फुटम्”, on which Ânandagiri says:—“यथा गोमण्डलस्थां गां शृङ्गं गृहीत्वा विशेषतो दर्शयत्येषा बहुक्षीरेति &c.” The same sense is attached to the maxim in Nilakanṭha on Udyoga-Pârva XLV. 9 (“मदोऽष्टादशदोषः स स्यात्पुरा योऽप्रकीर्तितः”) where we read:—“अप्रकीर्तित इति दमविरोधिन एव प्रातिकूल्यादयो मददोषत्वेन सूचिता अपि शृङ्गग्राहिकया प्रकर्षेण विधिमुखेन न प्रोक्ता इत्यर्थः” ॥ A fourth instance of the employment of this maxim in the same sense is found in the metrical comment on S'ândilya-sûtra 87:—“न तावत्समवायेन भेदसंबन्धगौरवात् । शब्दानां समयोऽप्येवं शृङ्गग्राहिकया लघुः” ॥ The passage is translated by Prof. Cowell as follows:—“It will not do to hold that the connexion between the cause and its effect may be that called 'Intimate relation,' and not that called 'Identity,'—because it is a much more cumbrous assumption than ours and involves the connexion of 'difference,' and by our own we easily get at the true meaning of the various S'ruti passages,—seizing them one by one, as oxen by their horns." In a footnote he adds :—"That is, such passages as 'Uktha is Brahman,' 'Prāṇa is Brahman' &c. S'ringagrāhikānyāya is a proverb sometimes explained as 'catching an unruly bull first by securing one horn and then the second,' and sometimes, 'driving many oxen into a stall, by seizing them one by one by their horns.'" In Bhāmati 3. 2. 22 (page 566) we have the phrase again :—"यथा गवादयो विषयाः साक्षाच्छृङ्गग्राहिकया प्रतिपाद्यन्ते प्रतीयन्ते च नैवं ब्रह्म" ॥ Mr. F. W. Thomas has pointed out to me the शीर्षग्रहणन्याय which is quoted in the commentary on Daṇḍin's Kāvyādarśa ii. 368. I think its usage must be similar to that of the above.

इयेनकपोतीयन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the hawk and the pigeon. Vardhamāna, in Ganaratnamahodadhi iii. 195, explains it in the following way :—"इयेनकपोतयोरिव इयेनकपोतीयो दुर्योगः । यथा कपोतोऽतर्कितमागतेन इयेनेन गृहीतस्तथाकस्मिको यो दुर्योगः स एवमुच्यते" ॥ This must be classed therefore with शरपुरुषीय and others of a similar kind. We have a इयेनकपोतीयमुपाख्यानं given in the table of contents which forms the opening part of the Mahābhārata, and the story will be found in Vanaparva cxvii. There is another in chapter cxxxi.

श्वश्रूनिर्गच्छोक्तिन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the mother-in-law who said, 'Be off.' This quaint illustration appears in Sures'vara's Neishkarmyasiddhi

i. 28, as follows:—“अभ्युपगताभ्युपगमाच्च श्वश्रूनिर्गच्छोक्तिवद्भवतो निष्प्र-योजनः प्रलापः” ॥ “And since you now express agreement with that which we also acknowledge, your protracted discussion was as unreasonable as was the mother-in-law’s saying [to the mendicant] ‘Be off.’ The commentator, Jñānottama, explains this in the following manner:—“भिक्षामटते माणवकाय भिक्षां प्रत्याचक्षाणामात्मनः स्नुषां भर्त्सयित्वा श्वश्रूः पुनस्तमाहूय समागते तस्मिन्नास्ति भिक्षा निर्गच्छेति तथैव प्रत्याचष्टे” ॥ “After abusing her daughter-in-law for refusing to give alms to a wandering mendicant, the mother-in-law called him back, and, when he had come, said to him, ‘There are no alms, be off,’ thus refusing also herself:’

सिंहावलोकनन्यायः ॥

The maxim of a lion’s glance. This is based on a lion’s habit of looking in front and behind, after killing its prey, to see if there is any rival to dispute possession! It is applied, says Tārānātha, where a word in a sentence is connected with what precedes and with that which follows it. It is not, however, restricted to this. The expression occurs four times in the Taittirīya-Prātisākhya, namely in ii. 51, iv. 4, xiii. 3 and 15.
Prof. Whitney remarks as follows on the first instance of its occurrence:—“The ‘and’ of this rule [वर्गवच्चैषु], the commentator says, brings forward, on the principle of ‘the lion’s look’ (a distant glance backward), the already defined organs of production of the various mute series.” It is found also in Nila-kantha’s comment on Vanoparva ccxi. 1 (गुरुभिर्नियमैर्जातो भरतो नाम पावकः) :—“सिंहावलोकनन्यायेन शंयोः पौत्रमूर्जपुत्रं भरतं स्तौति सा- धेन गुरुभिरिति” ॥ It was a favourite maxim of Vācaspatimis’ra’s, and I have met with it eight times in three of his writings. It occurs in Bhāmati 2. 3. 6 (page 473); in Sāṅkhyatattvakaumudī, 7 (page 36); and in Nyāyavārtika-tālparyatīkā, pages 97, 199, 230, 322, 403, 405. An example of a different kind is found in Hemachandra’s Paris’ishtaparvan, i. 63:—“सिंहावलोकन-न्यायेनालीढः क्षत्रतेजसा । प्रत्यक्षानिव सोऽद्राक्षीत्तानमात्यान्सुतद्विपः ” ॥

सूचीकटाहन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the needle and the boiler. It is explained as follows in Molesworth's Marāṭhī dictionary :—" A phrase used as an illustration upon the occasion of two matters of which the one is superlatively simple and easy, or altogether insignificant, and the other indefinitely greater, more difficult, or more important, arising at once to be done ; and of which it is intended to intimate that the trifling one should be despatched first." It occurs in the opening part of chapter iv of Kāvya-pradīpa, and again on page 70. Also in the commentary on Sāhitya-kaumudī iv. 1, where the same kārikā is expounded. The following is from the Saptapadārthī, page 21. The text runs thus :—
 “ अनुभवोऽपि द्विविधः । प्रमाऽप्रमा च । अप्रमापि संशयो विपर्ययश्च । प्रमा प्रत्यक्षमनुमितिश्च ” ॥ On which the commentator remarks :—" प्र-
 मानिरूप्यत्वात्परस्ताद्विभक्तमप्यप्रमां सूचीकटाहन्यायेन प्राग्विभजतेऽप्रमापी- ति ” ॥ There is another good example of the maxim, with a lucid translation by Dr. Ballantyne, in the introduction to Book ii of his Aphorisms of the Nyāya.

स्थालीपुलाकन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the rice in the cooking-pot. " In a cooking-pot all the grains being equally moistened by the heated water, when one grain is found to be well cooked the same may be inferred with regard to the other grains. So the maxim is used when the condition of the whole class is inferred from that of a part." (Apte's Sanskrit Dictionary). It is therefore equivalent to "Ex uno disce omnes." Patanjali seems to have laid the foundation of the nyāya in the following words, in Mahābhāṣya 1. 4. 23 (vart. 15) :—" पर्याप्तो ह्येकः पुलाकः स्थाल्या निदर्शनाय." ॥ Then we find it in Jaimini 7. 4. 12, the sūtra with a portion of S'abara's bhāṣya being as follows :—" लिङ्गस्य पूर्ववत्त्वाच्चोदनाशब्दसामान्यादेके- नापि निरूप्येत यथा स्थालीपुलाकेन ॥ एतन्न्यायपूर्वकं लिङ्गमेकत्रापि द-श्यमानं तुल्यन्यायानां सर्वेषां धर्मवत्तां ज्ञापयति । यथा स्थाल्यां तुल्यपाकानां
 पुलाकानामेकमुपमृद्यान्येषामपि सिद्धतां जानाति." ॥

Other instances of its occurrence are Tantravârtika 3. 5. 19; Vedântakalpataru, page 446; Kalpataruparimala, pages 115, 468, 667, 685; and Tattvamuktâkalâpa, 293. Of similar import is the following line from Hemachandra's Parisiṣṭaparva vii. 94:—“सिक्थेनापि द्रोणपाकं जानन्ति हि मनीषिणः” ॥

स्थूणानिखननन्यायः ॥

The maxim of the driving in of a post. As a post is driven into the ground by repeated efforts, so a position is strengthened by the bringing forward of a succession of facts or arguments. It occurs three times in S'ankara's bhâṣhya on the Vedântasûtras, as follows:—“पुनश्च जगज्जन्मादिहेतुत्वमीश्वरस्याक्षिप्यते स्थूणानिखननन्यायेन प्रतिज्ञातस्यार्थस्य दृढीकरणाय” 2. 1. 34. “आक्षेपपूर्विका हि परिहारोक्तिर्विवक्षितेऽर्थे स्थूणानिखननन्यायेन दृढां बुद्धिमुत्पादयति” 3. 3. 53. “सत्यं प्रसाधितं तस्यैव तु स्थूणानिखननवत्फलद्वारेणाक्षेपसमाधाने क्रियेते दार्ढ्याय” 3. 4. 2. But S'abara seems to have originated it in his bhâṣhya on Jaimini 7. 2. 1.

स्वाङ्गं स्वव्यवधायकं न भवति ॥

One's own body does not hinder one. It is found at the end of the Akshapâda section of the Sarvadars'anasangraha, as follows:—“न च स्वातन्त्र्यभङ्गः शङ्कनीयः स्वाङ्गं स्वव्यवधायकं न भवतीति न्यायेन प्रत्युत तन्निर्वाहात्” “Nor need you object that this would interfere with God's own independence [as He would thus seem to depend on others' actions], since there is the well-known saying, 'One's own body does not hinder one;' nay rather it helps to carry out one's aims.” This is Professor Cowell's translation.

Other instances of its employment are Bhâmatî 3. 4. 20 (page 682); Tâtparyatîkâ, pp. 72. 90; Târkkikarakṣatîkâ, page 50; Nyâyamakarandatîkâ, pp. 201, 215; and Khaṇḍanoddhâra, pages 58, 62.
